Great Crowd Greets Ship's Arrival at Lakehurst

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 15—The giant dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, landed safely here this afternoon, completing her transatlantic air passage, begun last Thursday morning at Friedrichshafen, Germany, with 60 souls aboard.

Philadelphia, Oct. 15, (INS)—Gleaming a dull grey against the leaden grey skies the dirigible Graf Zeppelin appeared over Philadelphia at 2:33 o'clock this afternoon. Thousands perched on roofs and house-tops to see the first transatlantic mail and passenger dirigible.

New York, Oct. 15 (INS)—Commander Eckener, of the Graf Zeppelin, plans to guide his great airship over New York before making a landing at Lakehurst, according to radio advices from the vessel, received here at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

(By the Associated Press)

The Graf Zeppelin, Germany's greatest leviathan of the air, saluted the capital of the Unitedl States this afternoon and then showed her silvery sides high in the air to thousands in other cities before turning to her waiting berth in Lakehurst, N. J.

Making landfall on the American continent near Cape Charles, Va., at about 10 o'clock, the airship cruised up the Chesapeake and arrived over Washington at 12:21 p. m.

Baltimore whistles acclaimed her first successful commercial air crossing of the Atlantic at exactly one o'clock. She passed over Philadelphia at 2:40.

The dirigible, nearing the end of her 6,500-odd miles flight from Friedrichshafen, had eclipsed all previous records for sustained flight by her type of air craft.

The old Zeppelin record of 101 fell at 7 a. m., the

DR. ECKENER and his fellow officers of the big Zeppelin hope that American capital will interest itself in the building of Zeppelin dirigibles for transatlantic service.

A big New York bank is said to be interested.

All are interested in the development of aviation. Every useful new thing helps general prosperity. If we can't build the airships ourselves, the next best thing is to finance them.

Wall St. begins a new week happily. United States Steel, on Saturday, went to a new high price, and other stocks up with it.

All the news from everywhere seems to be good. High interest rates, which can't last, since this nation is not committed to usury, offers fine opportunities for conservative investments in bonds.

Mr. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors, and his associates, will sooner or later get into the airplane field.

McClintic & Marshall, a firm of Pittsburgh, now contracting ready-made steel frames for houses, might well turn from steel to duralumin to build all metal dirigibles and frames.

Great demand for automobiles, keeping all plants at capacity production is one proof of prosperity.

The Northwest and Middle West report good business.

Truly, "It hath not been shown what we shall be."

If we were much more prosperous we could hardly stand it. That is to say, some of us could hardly stand it. But it is not so with all, unfortunately.

In New York, a man 80 years old, having vainly sought a job open to gray hairs, tried to hang himself from a third story window. He did not succeed in hanging himself, but fell and was killed.

Mr. Roy Howard looks before he leaps and decides not to leap, after having alcoholic drinks analyzed in many of New York's "best" speakeasies.

In eight "high grade" establishments his agents purchased liquors actually deadly. Only two or three places out of twenty-eight sold whiskies non-poisonous.

And they also were poisonous since alcohol, as facts are, is always a poison.

Henry Ford has bought and will take to his museum in Dearborn, Mich., a little cabin cruiser in which Luther Burbank worked at his problems.

Henry Ford, unconsciously imitates the Empress Catherine of Russia, who wrote philosophical letters to old Voltaire, and many letters of quite a different kind to young gentlemen nearer home.

When Voltaire died Catherine took the wooden lining from the rooms that he used in his house at Fernay, bought and took to Russia his entire library of 6000 volumes with annotations in his fine handwriting on many pages.

25,000 TO 30,000 ROAR WELCOME TO HOOVER AS HE SPEAKS ON COMMON

Herbert Hoover took Greater Boston by storm today in a whirlwind auto tour of the suburbs and, reaching Boston Common, received a roaring welcome from a throng estimated by Police Supt. Crowley to number 25,000 to 30,000 persons.

Crowds lined the route over which he passed throughout Greater Boston cities and towns, and at several points his car was stopped by the surging throngs. Boston shouted its acclaim from Harvard bridge, through the Back Bay, to the Common's historic sward.

Saving his political thunder for this evening, when at the Boston Arena, he will talk tariff to the nation, the Republican presidential aspirant limited his remarks on the Common to thanks for his reception and references to the Bay State's place in history.

Earlier in the day, at Springfield and Worcester, he appealed to his hearers for the energetic support of every loyal Republican and the votes of the independents, on the strength of the record of Calvin Coolidge.

Mayor Nichols and others delivered Boston's official welcome to

MELROSE MAN GIVES UP AS 'SLAYER' OF GIRL

Declaring that he is wanted in Newport, R. I., for the murder of his sweetheart, Miss Mary Gleason, a domestic, nearly three years ago, M. J. Dowdren, 25, of Melrose, surrendered to police at Etowah, Tenn., today.

The frozen body of Miss Gleason was found on January 25, 1925, buried in snow at the bottom of a 25 foot moat on the Fort Adams reservation at Newport.

After a long investigation, during which a George P. Henderson, a Coast Guard private at the fort, was held for questioning, an army court of inquiry officially ruled that Miss Gleason met her death by accident and not by foul play.

Nevertheless, when Dowdren walked into the chief of police office at Etowah today, he stated that George Henderson, his "buddy" is also wanted for the murder and will surrender.

The girl, according to friends, was on her way to meet Henderson on the night she disappeared.

That was four days before the body was found, with bruises on the head and face, her knees scratched, the clothing torn and disarranged, both fists clenched and with her right arm upraised as if warding off a blow.

During the time that Henderson was held in custody and was being questioned, Private George C. Cordy, Fort Adams deserter, wrote a letter to Chief of Police Sweeney of Newport declaring that he (Cordy) murdered the girl.

His "confession" was discredited after investigation, however, and finally Private Henderson was freed. No man named Dowdren ever was mentioned in the case at the time.

DR. CONRAD GIVEN 'LIE' IN ATTACK ON SMITH

The Rev. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of the Park Street Church, was today given the lie publicly by John H. Merrill of Milton, a Boston attorney.

Speaking at the noonday rally of ex-Mayor James M. Curley at old Young's Hotel in the interests of Democratic registration, Attorney Merrill said Dr. Conrad lied in a statement that Governor Smith is a "common drinker."

The denunciation resulted from the radio address made by the clergyman last night, which led ex-Mayor Curley to declare it would be "a long time before we can call Dr. Conrad honest."

"The most despicable thing a preacher can do," Curley said, "is to make charges by inference.

"This man who canonizes Mabel Willebrandt drags the pulpit into the mire of politics and then mires the mire of politics."

He then introduced Attorney Merrill, who told of listening to Dr. Conrad on the radio and immediately going to Boston to call on him.

"I asked him where he got his information about Governor Smith being a "common drinker," said Merrill. "He replied that many people had told him, but he couldn't give me one name. I asked him to tell me where he got the pamphlet he referred to but he couldn't do that. I then asked him what he personally knew about Governor Smith's habits, and he replied it was common knowledge that Alfred E. Smith is a 'souse.'

"Dr. Conrad, you lie, when you make that statement."

On Board Graf Zeppelin, Oct. 15—Land was sighted off the Virginia Coast at 9:30 a. m. and a rush was made for the windows for the first glimpse of the United States.

Smokers are already toying with their pipes and cigarettes in anticipation of landing at Lakehurst and enjoying the first smoke since last Thursday morning.

This morning Comdr. Eckener prepared a message to President Coolidge which was sent by radio.

Everybody on board is well, but some of the passengers are beginning to think that the joke is being too long drawn out. If it lasts much longer it may become necessary to ration food supplies.

Food is becoming scarcer aboard ship and it was reported in the dining room Sunday noon that there is danger of our being reduced to bread, caviar and champagne before the journey is over.

However, everybody remains wonderfully cheerful and Lady Drummond Hay, the only woman passenger, who has never lost her good nature, has become the idol of the ship.

NOTABLES WAIT ZEPP AT LAKEHURST FIELD

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 15 (INS)—With previous plans for welcoming ceremonies abandoned in the face of delays and uncertainty a new program of reception for the Graf Zeppelin upon its arrival was announced today.

As hosts of the marine detachment here under Capt. John Groff, who will have the distinction of being the first American officer to greet the ship's occupants, the Zeppelin crew and those of the passengers who wish to attend will be entertained at a reception to begin here immediately after their arrival.

The function will be staged in the "Machinery Building" tonight and has been labeled a "smoker and entertainment," the smoker part having a strong appeal for the ship's crew and passengers for whom smoking has been forbidden.

NOTABLES AT SCENE.

More than 300 distinguished visitors to Lakehurst, including service officials from Washington and the navy, marine and army personnel will crowd the hall.

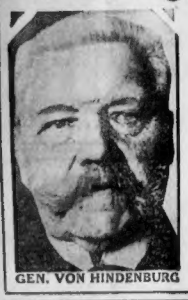
Coolidge and Eckener Flash Air Historic Greetings Over the Radio



GEN. VON HINDENBURG

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—President Coolidge and Dr. Hugo Eckener, skipper of the Graf Zeppelin, today exchanged radio greetings as the big sky liner neared the nation's capital. The Zeppelin was nearing the capital when the messages were exchanged.

Dr. Eckener to Mr. Coolidge:

"At the moment of reaching the American coastline on this diversified and very interesting initial crossing of the Atlantic Ocean for airship with passengers and mail from Germany to America in which we have had as comrade and experienced friend Lieut. Comdr. Rosendahl of the U. S. Navy, the commander and crew of the Graf Zeppelin beg to extend to the President of the United States their most respectful greeting."

DR. ECKENER

President Coolidge to Dr. Eckener:

"It gives me great pleasure to congratulate you upon the success of your voyage from Germany and to assure you that your arrival is welcomed as a symbol of the advance in air transportation which has been so ably furthered by your own efforts and those of your compatriots.

"I wish also to thank you for the message of greeting from you and the crew of the Graf Zeppelin upon crossing the coastline of the United States in this first trip by airship with passengers and mail from Germany to this country."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO PRESIDENT VON HINDENBURG:

"I wish to congratulate you upon the splendid achievement of your compatriots in accomplishing the voyage from Germany to the United States on the Graf Zeppelin. This flight has filled the American people with admiration and has marked another step in the progress of development of air communication."

Air Liner Returns to Coast After Visit to Washington

By KENNETH CLARK

(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 15—Poking its long nose out of an overcast sky as gray as its own color, the Graf Zeppelin made a fleeting visit to Washington today en route to Lakehurst from Germany.

The Zeppelin arrived over Washington at 12:21 o'clock.

From Washington the Zepp headed for Lakehurst and passed over Baltimore at 1 p. m.

She passed over Havre De Grace, Md., at 1:35 p. m., and over Elkton, Md., at 2 p. m.

She passed over Wilmington, Del., at 2:10, following the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, and over Chester, Pa., at 2:22 p. m.

The airship was sighted over Philadelphia at 2:40.

Crossing the American coast at 10:10 a. m. at Cape Charles, Virginia, the monster dirigible, with its crew of forty and twenty passengers, altered its course to swing over the nation's capital.

As the ship headed over Chesapeake Bay and the Potomac River, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, sent a radio message of greetings to President Coolidge. He asked permission to fly over Washington. Mr. Coolidge at once replied to Dr. Eckener and ordered the permission granted.

Washington was taken completely by surprise by the Zeppelin's visit. All along it had been thought from the airship's course that it would run to Lakehurst over a more direct inland route.

Even before the Zeppelin arrived the news of its impending visit spread like wildfire in Washington. It seemed that everybody in town had their necks craned to the sky to catch the first glimpse of the air liner.

The Zeppelin's radio message to the Navy Department that it would visit Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia on the way to Lakehurst, read:

"Graf Zeppelin crossed coast line six miles north of Cape Charles at 10:10 a. m. Will proceed by Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia en route to Lakehurst, where will arrive at 4 p. m."

The Zeppelin requested permission to fly over the cities named. This was speedily granted by return radio.

Government departments poured out their employes by the thousands. Business was temporarily paralyzed. Traffic came to a virtual standstill. Everybody shouted and pointed to the Zeppelin as it slowly circled over the naval air station at Anacostia, over the Capitol, and with majestic stride flew over the White House, where President Coolidge waved a greeting.

By its epochal flight, the Graf linked Europe and America together by commercial passenger and air line. It is expected to be the forerunner of a regular transatlantic service.

Battled Head Winds for Most of 107 Hour Voyage

On the flight of more than 107 hours, the dirigible battled much of the way against bad weather and adverse winds. A sudden rain squall ripped the cover off its port horizontal stabilizer. This reduced the liner's speed. The work of repairing the damage in mid-air was an exceptional feat.

The Zeppelin drew far to the south of its course to run out of the poor weather conditions. Aviation officials said the flight under such adverse circumstances proved the airworthiness of the Zeppelin and its crew.

Its motors roaring steadily, the great, gray airship flew into view from the south and east. It had followed the course of the Potomac river from the Virginia Capes.

Despite the heavy weather, the nose of the Zeppelin shone like silver.

After swinging wide over the Capitol and the Congressional Library, the Zeppelin made direct for the heart of the downtown business district. It circled just to the left of the International News Service building.

Through powerful glasses it was possible to distinguish human figures leaning out of the windows at the side of the ship. The passengers and crew waved frantically and just as enthusiastically the crowds that jammed the streets and rooftops waved and cheered back.

The fin in the ship's port stabilizer was plainly visible. It was in jagged ruin as if the wind had torn it away.

On the prow, in red letters seemingly several feet high, were the words:

"Graf Zeppelin."

Back of this came the markings, "D-LZ 127."

The motors roared like those of a dozen airplanes.

Like tiny wasps beside the monster of the air, a dozen government and private airplanes circled and dived and flew around it.

As an official salute to President Coolidge, the dirigible dipped its nose twice as it passed over the White House.

Mr. Coolidge had just finished shaking hands with a number of visitors when he was told the Zeppelin was overhead. He rushed out to the front of the executive offices. Persons near him did not recognize the President so intent were they in watching the airship.

Nothing the Zeppelin turning over the White House, Mr. Coolidge fairly ran over to the south porch of the mansion where he joined Mrs. Coolidge. She had a pair fo binoculars glued to her eyes.

When the Graf Zeppelin flew over the navy department at a height of 1000 feet, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and a number of naval officers stationed on the roof of the building, plainly saw the badly torn port fin. They were able to see the sky above through the torn part of the vessel.

People climbed to precarious vantage points on top of all federal buildings to watch the Zeppelin. Even the White House roof had its share.

Secretary of Treasury Mellon, like hundreds of Treasury Department employes, watched the liner from the middle of East Executive ave., which divides the White House and the Treasury.

As the ship passed over the downtown section, several of the passengers dropped notes and post cards overboard. There was a wild scramble as the messages fell. One fell on top of a building at 14th and F sts.

The Zeppelin traveled at a high rate of speed over the city. It was not 1000 feet in the air.

The Zeppelin did not tarry long. After circling over the White House it flew off to the north and east toward Baltimore. It climbed as it disappeared and was soon lost in the mists and clouds.

BIG AIR LINER MADE COAST AT 10:05 A. M.

The Graf Zeppelin reached the United States coast at 10:05 this morning.

Holding a northeast course the airship soared above Cape Henry, Va., as the first land in America to be reached.

At 10:15 the dirigible passed over Hog Island, Va., 15 miles south of Cape Henlopen, Del. Her course had been altered again slightly and she was headed in the direction of Washington.

The first sight of the Zeppelin from the American coast came at 9:45 a. m. when she was seen out at sea from Cape Henry, Va. The scouting fleet at that time also picked up the dirigible and radioed her position to the Navy Department.

At 4 o'clock this morning the ship was 145 miles due west of Cape Hatteras. At 7 a. m. she was only 100 east of the Cape, according to a radio message to New York, indicating she was making for Lakehurst at 45 miles an hour. At 8 o'clock she was 60 miles east of Hatteras.

A message from the steamship James McGee, picked up by the Radio Marion Corporation station stated that the ship, at 9:35 a. m., was in communication with the dirigible, which then was about 45 miles from Cape Henry.

It is believed the crew and passengers of the Zeppelin have been living on reduced rations for the last half dozen hours, as the food supply was based on a maximum flying time of 100 hours.

GERMANY IS JUBILANT AT SUCCESS

Berlin, Oct. 15—A thrill of jubilation ran through the German nation this afternoon when word was received from New York that the Graf Zeppelin, Germany's mighty new air liner, had reached the American coast.

Newspapers issued extra editions, while great crowds gathered before the newspaper bulletin boards and cheered.

At Friedrichshafen, where the "air palace" was built, there was a big demonstration. Employes of the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen ran out upon the flying field and tossed their caps in the air.

"Thank God; that is wonderful news," exclaimed Frau Brandenburg, wife of Director Brandenburg of the German air service, when informed by International News Service that the airship had reached the United States coast line. Her husband is one of the 20 passengers on board.

She added: "The news makes me very happy."

Pastor Pens Poem on Epic Flight of Giant Zeppelin

Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., Oct. 15 (AP)—A poem has been written by the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Offerman, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, in greeting to the Graf Zeppelin. It follows:

Sail on, thou ship of the fickle skies,
Sail on, 'midst thy dreams;
Sail on, linking worlds in love's bright ties,
Sail on, on friendship's beams.

ident of the United German Societies, will be master of ceremonies. The station band will open the reception with a concert. Boxing, vaudeville and community singing will feature the program. Dr. Erich Mueller, New York musician, will introduce a commemorative hymn, titled "Hail Graf Zeppelin."

Eager to see the big Zeppelin arrive, several thousand persons were on the field near the hangar today long before noon and the number was being constantly augmented.

News of the approach of the Zeppelin up the coast spread like wildfire and crowded automobiles swarmed the scene. The New Jersey state police and special riding officers were out in force to maintain order.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Warner announced early in the afternoon that the Los Angeles would not go out to meet the Zeppelin, as had been planned during the morning hours.

"I conferred with Admiral Moffat and other navy officials and we decided that it would be unwise to take the Los Angeles out of the hangar and unsettle the arrangements that had been made there," he said.

"The Los Angeles in all probability will remain where it is. It would be a rather difficult task to take care of the landing of both the Los Angeles and Graf Zeppelin at the same time."

ECKENER'S FUTURE PLANS.

Dr. O. C. Kiep, charge d'affaires of the German embassy in Washington, speaking of the flight and the future plans of Dr. Hugo Eckener, the skipper, said:

"Dr. Eckener's venture is a purely commercial one, and he is in no way officially connected with the German government. He will arrange his future program when he reaches Lakehurst. He has received countless invitations and offers. They are all in the hands of his personal representative. Hugh Allen, with whom he will confer regarding them shortly after his arrival."

LADY HAY'S MOTHER "HAPPIEST IN ENGLAND"

London, Oct. 15 (INS)—The happiest woman in England this afternoon was Mrs. Lethridge, mother of Lady Drummond Hay, only woman passenger on the transatlantic air liner Graf Zeppelin.

"Thank God," exclaimed Mrs. Lethridge when informed that the Zeppelin had reached the American coast. "I cannot say in words how terribly relieved we feel. The watching and waiting has been awful for my husband and myself. I hope I never have to go through a similar experience again."

Anxious crowds clamor for news of the Graf Zeppelin at the information office at Lakehurst while keeping an all-day and all-night vigil for the arrival of the huge passenger air liner. The crowds at Lakehurst were so tremendous that the food supplies for miles around were exhausted. The traffic jam of autos and every other conceivable conveyance was unprecedented.

25,000 CHEER HOOVER ON COMMON

Side-tracking, temporarily, the pressure of party politics, Herbert Hoover in his first Boston appearance as presidential nominee today at the Parkman Bandstand on the Common paid tribute to the New England pioneers in California and expressed for that state its respect for their accomplishments.

"Coming from the Far West," Hoover declared in the audience variously estimated at between 25,000 and 35,000 who massed about the bandstand to see and hear him, "I could do nothing more at the scene of the beginnings of American civilization than to voice the appreciation which every Californian city entertains for the men of New England who created that great Commonwealth on the shores of the Pacific."

The Republican nominee, fresh from his tour of suburban Boston arrived at the Common shortly after 5 o'clock and began to speak at 5:25 o'clock.

GREETED WITH CHEERS.

A crowd of men and women attracted at noon by a Republican rally, addressed by nominees of that party for the higher State offices, was greatly augmented as the hour set for Hoover's arrival approached and their cheers resounded through the downtown district when his automobile drew up to permit him to attend the bandstand platform.

He was escorted to the dais by Governor Fuller and Mayor Nichols—the latter introducing him to his first public Boston audience.

Microphones picked up the words of the presidential nominee for radio broadcast and amplifiers in the bandstand roof brought his brief words to the outermost fringe of the crowd.

He said: "I deeply appreciate this greeting you have given me in this historic spot. Any American citizen may be proud of such a reception as I have received since my arrival in Massachusetts today."

GUEST AT LUNCHEON.

"Coming from the far west to the beginnings of American civilization, I can do nothing more than to voice the appreciation that every city of California has for the men of New England who created that great commonwealth.

"It was Daniel Webster who helped bring about the entrance of California into the Union, and it was New England which gave us our school and college systems.

"Tonight I shall address you on political subjects, and so I consider this present occasion as a meeting with my Boston friends, irrespective of political party."

At the conclusion of his brief address Hoover was whisked away to the Statler, where he was scheduled to attend a formal luncheon.

Sidelights Along Route of Hoover Auto Parade

As the Hoover automobile parade passed through Belmont, an old man holding an ancient and flag-bedecked gray horse on a lawn, wiggled the equine's head up and down in greeting. Hoover waved at the man who gave similar evidence that the day, thereby, had been made complete.

Nuns at the St. Agnes school in Arlington, brought their flock out on the front steps to watch the parade go by.

Girl Scouts stood on the curbs in Arlington, and it was Mrs. Hoover's turn to acknowledge their presence.

There was one proud little chap standing at attention in front of the Laura A. Leonard school in Malden, centered in his school group. He was dressed as a miniature Uncle Sam, even to the whiskers.

The automobile procession picked up speed in parts of Cambridge and Somerville when several groups of men and women held up Al Smith placards so that the riders might see.

"All the tall people are going to vote for Hoover, if that proves anything," sighed a short, dimpled flapper wedged in the dense throng around Parkman band stand. "I've wiggled ten pounds off in this crowd trying to find a place in front of all these tall folks."

See Hoover Swing in Four Southern States

Chicago, Oct. 15—For the first time in 60 years a Democratic candidate for the presidency is facing a wave of opposition in Virginia and North Carolina, and little less bitterness in Florida, that threatens to wipe the old order from the political slate.

One's state of mind, accustomed these many national campaigns to ignore the "Solid South" as automatically in the Democratic column, hesitate even to think of these two States as ever becoming debatable ground.

But every poll that has been taken in these States this year points to unmistakable upheavals that easily could switch them to the Hoover camp this time.

The Hearst Nation-wide poll figures today are the most conservative of all, and yet they show that 58 per cent of the total vote polled in North Carolina, representing a gross section of sentiment, is for Hoover.

HOOVER LEADS

The Literary Digest poll shows even a greater percentage of the totals for Hoover.

The North Carolina figures are:
Hoover 7795
Smith, 6114.

North Carolina, perhaps more than any other Southern State except Florida, has enjoyed a marked awakening in the last decade. With the enormous gains chalked up by the manufacturer, as well as the tillers of the soil, during the World War harvest, the commercial development has spread to all parts of the State.

It is on this point, and the outlook for greater foreign markets in the event of Hoover's election, that the G. O. P. managers have laid their greatest stress.

TALK BUSINESS

While the local factionist leaders have been beating each other around the stump on demon rum and kindred issues, the Hoover generals have been confining their appeals to the commercial-mindedness of the people.

Tennessee, the poll today shows, is sweeping to the Republican ticket with a percentage of 58 of the total vote. Governor Smith is encountering perhaps the warmest opposition of his present tour in this State.

George Milton, owner and editor of the Chattanooga News and former McAdoo leader, is one of the irreconcilables of that section, and he is going down the line against Smith.

The Tennessee figures today are:
Hoover, 6948.
Smith, 4447.

Harding carried this State in 1920.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

Dearest Anne:

Didn't we have a glorious hell day? I surely never expected to be at the beach in swimming on the 12th of October. Do you know, I really think Rita was a bit disappointed that we didn't go to the mountains, for we have been shopping all week for the trip and it's only you'll find dresses like those Mae Callaghan, Park Square Building, has on sale for $5.45! Stunning printed jerseys, a n d printed and plain Jersey combinations in two-piece models with skirts that are pleated all the way around. Some of these dresses sold for $15.00 in the season. They come in all the desired Fall shades—hunter's green, Monet blue, Italian wine and beige. There are also some smart silk tweeds in gray and tan, and wool tweeds with a popular snug-fitting hipline, for $15.00. Trust Mae Callaghan to put on a sale that is really worthwhile!

Once In a Blue Moon

No Idle Gossip

is the talk I've heard all over town about the hand-made, hand-blocked Soleil and French Felt hats selling exclusively at the Hudson Weaving & Apparel Shop, 469 Washington St., for $2.50! I've been to this shop myself and was truly amazed that such genuine, expensive looking hats could be sold at this price. They come in this season's popular colors and styles—jaunty skull hats, swagger tam-o'-shanters and chic cut-away hats. Best of all, they come in all sizes, 20, 21, 22 and 23. Here's where the long-haired miss and the bobbed-haired sister can both be fitted to the same youthful styles!

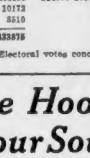
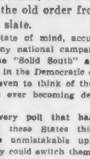
"Music Hath Charms" writes Beth, "but my home has double charm and distinction since the baby grand piano arrived." It was Ted's anniversary present to me, and we have such delightful times gathered around it in the evenings. It was bought at the F. A. Condon Piano Co., 156 Boylston St., right opposite the Common, and is just the right size to tuck in to a small apartment living room, 4 feet, 9 inches deep. It was really a wonderful buy, regular $750 value, on sale for only $495. It is so much easier to entertain when you have a piano. You must drop in there and see their small studio upright for $225. A remarkable buy!



Old Age

to youth is the startling revelation revealed in your mirror, a vision of a "Beautiful Face." Not a spiritual apparition, but a reflection of an image, having actual existence portrayed to the eye and mental vision, as a visible representation of what scientific "Absorption" can accomplish for you—a clear, radiant and beautiful complexion, soft and velvety, free from the slightest defect. No sallowness; no tired lines or wrinkles. No skin imperfections of any kind. Call Mrs. Gardner, Mgr. Facial Dept., Hay. 1647, for appointment, $5.00 demonstration facial for $2.00, including the Zeeronator iceless dry cold massage. Post Institute, 6 Beacon St., Room 910.



Dressing Dolls

used to be fun for just little girls, but grown-ups are enjoying it now—since they found how decorative those undressed long-legged dolls are when arrayed in skirts of billowy ruffles. Feine's Trimming Shop, 480 Washington St., has a wonderful assortment of these popular dolls, priced at 95c. The sleek, black-haired models are as sophisticated, and there are many of the "preferred blonde" type. There are also some original Parisian dolls, "Feine's own import," from which you may copy. You can also buy your materials here at unusually low prices. There are three capable instructors at Feine's to advise you—not only in dressing dolls, but also in making lampshades, pillows and all sort of pretty home decorations. Open until 6:30 p. m.

And Here's an Opportunity to join one of the most remarkable clubs! Just the wish to be warmly snuggled in a smart fur coat is credential enough, and the "invitation" (which has to do with prices and terms) is conducted in the strictest privacy. No "embarrassing moments" here. If you haven't guessed it already, it's Scott's Unique Fur Club. Scott Furriers, Inc., New England's Largest Fur Establishment, is located at 69 Summer St., and by popular demand, due to their liberal terms and fair dealing, they have found it necessary to open another store at 51 Pratt St., Hartford, Conn. Small wonder, when they extend such unusual advantages. Do you know that they allow you a "turn in" value on your old fur coat, and will accept it as first payment on a new one and make no charge for alterations? Besides this, there are three unique plans for purchasing. You may make a small payment when you choose your coat, and pay the balance when you take it out; or, you may open a $5, $10, or 50-day charge account, under which you may make small weekly or monthly payments while wearing the coat. What a wonderful opportunity to protect yourself against the wintry blasts!

Pshist! Was it Old Santa poking his nose about a bit in advance of his season, or one of his clever vassals who brought to Filene's Gift Shop street floor those adorable rush-bottomed footstools that are actually made in Holland and sell for only $2.50! You've really no idea how inviting one would look when placed in front of a great arm chair, nor how comfy and restful you'd feel with your feet tucked up on one while reading or sewing. Their sturdy wooden legs are carved in the quaintest Dutch design and you can almost feel the joy and zellet of old-world Mart when his flaxen-haired Gretchen slips off his clip-cloppity wooden shoes and places a footstool under his tired feet. And so, little new-world Gretchen, after you've done this for Papa Karl in your new-world way and he settles down with a sigh of utter bliss—treat him to another surprise. A little "smack"—native excuse for displaying the iridescent glass honey jar you also bought in Filene's Gift Shop. All the way from Czechoslovakia come these iridescent blue and amber colored crystal jam or honey jars in two different styles. The honey bees look for all the world like a beehive, even to the colored glass bee alighted on top for a handle. They are priced at $2.50.

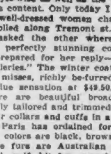
Fashion and Prudence are strange playmates, yet when fashion gally steps forth from the Spanish Galleries of Chandler & Co., prudence in price is close by her side. Here is the place where the style-wise as well as the value wise may revel in coats to their heart's content. Only today I overheard two well-dressed women chatting as they strolled along Tremont st., and when one asked the other where she bought her perfectly stunning coat, I was quite prepared for her reply—The Spanish Galleries." The winter coats for women and misses, richly be-furred, are surely a value sensation at $49.50. For instance, there are beautiful broadcloth coats, smartly tailored and trimmed with luxurious fur collars and cuffs in all the styles that Paris has ordained for this winter. The colors are black, brown and tan, and the furs are Australian opossum, caracul, wolf, kit fox, manchurian dog and marmink, in sizes from 16 to 46.

For misses (in sizes 14 to 20) there are gorgeous broadcloth coats in all colors—youthful models with lavish fur trimmings. One particularly attractive new "pouch" shawl collar. There are also some rich, soft-nap tweed travel coats in gray and tan, with real heavy collars! All the coats have crepe satin linings and are warmly interlined throughout.

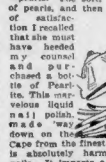
When Hearts Are Young

and life is full and active, gray hairs are strangely out of place. This is the day of the same youthful styles for both mother and daughter, and what place have fading hairs peeping out under a smartly-turned, hair-fitting hat? When first you peer into your mirror, and wonder what has become of the lustre-lights that used to be reflected, that is the time to apply a good restorer that is not a dye. Ann J. McHale's Hair Color Restorer, sold at S. S. Pierce Co., 59 Tremont St., for $100 a bottle, is a marvelous preparation which produces and permanently maintains the original shade, restores gray hair to its natural color, and is positively safe to use. Ann J. McHale has also solved another problem for us in preparing an excellent pomade to promote the growth of eyelashes and eyebrows. It also relieves the irritation of the eyelids, and is priced at $1.00 a jar. Cuti-Tone (White Wash) is the perfect astringent which tightens loose and flabby skin is invaluable as a daily wash. The price is $1.00 and $2.00 per bottle. The Perfect Massage Cream is a cold cream of exceptional merit. It removes makeup, preserves the delicate tissue of the skin and will not grow hair or become rancid. Priced 75c and $1.00.



When Jean Was Serving Tea

my gaze fell upon her fingertips, and instead of finger nails I saw "pearls!" The soft, mellow glow of pearls, and then with a sigh of satisfaction I recalled that she must have handled my counsel and purchased a bottle of Pearlite. This marvelous liquid nail polish made 'way down on the Cape from the finest of materials, is absolutely harmless to the nails. It imparts a natural tint and does not peel or crack. It is sold at Filene's Toilet Goods Dept. for $1.00. The package includes both polish and remover. Better not be without it. Anne.



"I'll Be Forever Free"

sang Kathie happily, "from those unsightly hairs that once caused me so much embarrassment, for I have made a special appointment with an electric needle expert, Miss Elisabeth Sparkes, at 120 Tremont St." These blemishes can all be removed, painlessly and permanently, and the treatment leaves no trace whatever upon the skin, nor does it roughen the surface. The privacy of the appointments will delight you. Miss Sparkes also has a special machine for the removal of hairs from the legs, and I know you will have absolute confidence in her skill. For appointment call Han. 7502.

Oo-Oh! Such Adorable Dresses!

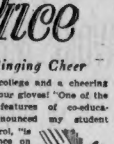
Not the kind that you see duplicated instead of once around the tearoom or at the country club, but smart, individual styles. I took my young cousin shopping and she fairly ran out of exclamations before we left the shop of Evelyn's, 8 Winter St. Just think of it — sporty silk and swanky wool tweed dresses priced at $6.75 and up! We bought one of our favorite jacket styles (in silk tweed of course) for Jackets have certainly stepped to the front this season and our dependable Evelyn has a goodly stock of its many attractive variations at prices ranging from $5 to $12.95. New models are coming in every day, so you'd better stop in and look around, Anne.

Some Like it Long—

Some like it short! But long or short it absolutely must be waved. Lou's excuse for her tousled locks has been the breeze of outdoor summer sports, but at last she realized that she must keep her hair looking "fit" and has had a glorious permanent at Gilchrist's Beauty Shop, and the wide, loose waves are most becoming. This is an excellent place to have your hair cut, Anne. There are barbers who study your type and style and will give you a most individualized bob, and the cost is only —59 cents! Remember that, Anne, the next time you need a trim.

A Ringing Cheer

for your college and a cheering fing for your gloves! "One of the greatest features of co-education," announced my student friend, Carol, "is its influence on clothes." For example, take the n e w "Co-ed" gloves of the finest brand of doled capeskin, sold at Jordan Marsh Company, street floor, for $4.00 a pair. They have no buttons, no snaps—just a smart strap that runs 'round your wrist and fastens itself securely through two nickel rings. They come in the most desirable shades of tan, gray, mello, blue, black, and even red. Best of all they're washable!



You May Guard

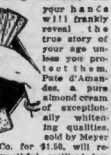
against Time by retaining the natural color of your hair, or by cleverly preventing your face from becoming wrinkled, but your hands will frankly reveal the true story of your age unless you protect them. Pate d'Amandes, a pure almond cream of exceptionally whitening qualities, sold by Meyer Jonsson Co. for $1.50, will restore the youthful, resilient texture to the skin of your hands, and will turn their sallowness into the faintly-tinged hue of youth. It also imparts a soft, white transparency to the nails. In this day of bridge parties your hands are critically displayed. Don't let them betray your age!

The Color Vogue

is far-reaching, indeed, Anne, and now includes such every day articles as tooth brushes, nail brushes and the smart, new-size hair brushes for bobbed hair. R. H. Stearns Co. (Sixth Floor), Tremont St., have accumulated their stock of these new styles with gayly-colored handles of blue, green and pink. They are priced from 50c to $3.35, and the bristles are of excellent long-wearing quality. The newest followers in the trend of color schemes add an attractive note to your toilet accessories, and will surely encourage the youngsters in the care of their teeth and nails.

Hats Off—

for the gay indoor parties of winter! Every woman knows the importance of a smartly groomed head, and that too much caution can never be exercised in selecting the proper dye for bright tints. Mehts are unkind to faded or streaked hair. At Stratt's Beauty Shop, 41 Winter St., a staff of specialists is maintained who excel in hair dyeing, using either the Nestine or Paragon Method which insures the most satisfactory results. Frederic's Vitalonic and La Mar permanents, priced at $8.00, are also given by these experts and their naturallooking fingee waves have become vastly popular. Save your steps and time, Anne, by having everything done at Stratt's. Tel. Lib. 9443.



And now, after our marvelous week-end, isn't it wonderful to think that we are all going to the game together next Saturday —and then the party after!

I know we'll spend all our spare time (and some that isn't) a-shopping next week, because they tell me West Point's fair roosters are not to be lightly regarded.

Rita says she is looking forward to seeing the parade almost as much as the game, and I am, too. Don't you love the fluttering banners and martial airs Anne? It isn't often we have a treat like this, so we'll have to put our "best foot forward" and show those "Kay-dets" our Boston style—"Civic Pride," I think it's called.

So, my dear Anne, drop me a note as fast as you can and let me know what day you are coming to town, for I shall be waiting.

Devotedly,
Priscilla

the smiling candidate when he stepped to the Parkman bandstand on the Common. Mrs. Nichols extended a greeting to Mrs. Hoover and then the Republican party's standard-bearer was presented to the crowd by the Mayor.

HOOVER IN BEAMING

The distinguished visitor, invading Massachusetts personally for the 18 electoral votes of the Bay State, was beaming from the exhilaration of the acclaim accorded him as he rode with his party through Newton, Watertown, Belmont, Arlington, Medford, Malden, Everett, Somerville and Cambridge.

Twenty State troopers on motorcycles guided a like number of automobiles bearing the Hoover party and Massachusetts G. O. P. leaders, including Governor Fuller, in this swing half around the Hub, which began at the Newtonville station of the Boston & Albany railroad.

HOOVER SPECIAL ARRIVES.

Governor Fuller, Mrs. Fuller and many Bay State men and women prominent in Republican party activities were in the forefront of a crowd of more than 5000 that watched the special train draw into the Newtonville station. There were many school children in the crowd, classes having been suspended for them.

The Governor boarded the train and a moment later reappeared with Hoover on the rear platform. Allan Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, was the first to step from the train, followed by Governor Fuller and Hoover. Mrs. Fuller had gone aboard to greet Mrs. Hoover, and they were the next to descend and cross the tracks.

The station was gaily decorated in the national colors. The crowd was on Washington st., high above the tracks.

POSES FOR PICTURES

Crossing the tracks toward the steps leading to Washington st. and the waiting automobiles, Hoover stopped to pose for pictures. He was smiling broadly.

Mayor Childs of Newton next welcomed Hoover to his city, and following this there was a pretty little ceremony when Gene, Peggy and Eileen, children of E. Fred Cullen of the Republican State committee, handed Hoover a bouquet of Talisman roses. Mrs. Hoover was then given a similar tribute.

Through a lane guarded by 16 Newton policemen and 10 State troopers, the Hoover party walked to the automobiles, and once in the era alloted to him, Hoover waved his hand to the throng, acknowledging prolonged cheers.

FLAGS FOR THE CROWD.

In addition to the Governor, the official welcoming delegation at Newtonville, included Louis K. Liggett, Republican national committeeman; Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, national committeewoman; John Richardson, chairman of the Hoover volunteer committee; Francis Prescott, chairman of the Republican State committee; E. J. Frost and Maynard Hutchinson of the Hoover volunteers.

Small American flags were distributed to the throng, before the train arrived, by the Newtonville Republican committee.

Emerson H. Stoddard, member of Newton G. A. R. Post, was given an opportunity to shake hands with the candidate. Although he did not mention it to Hoover, Stoddard told those waiting near him that he voted for Lincoln.

PARADE GETS UNDER WAY

Traffic regulations were suspended as the parade dashed from Newtonville to Newton Center, led by Motorcycle Officers James Goddard and Lawrence O'Donnell of Newton and 10 of the State police riders. At the Watertown line local police swung into place in the van and this maneuver was repeated as the boundary of each city or town on the route was reached.

Everywhere along the suburban route the sidewalks were dotted with women and children especially out to see the national Republican leader, while at the busy squares large throngs cheered him.

On Medford st., Arlington, 300 school children were massed on the steps of St. Agnes parochial, waving flags and shouting, and

Hoover Cheered By School Children In Newtonville

School children held the center of the stage at Newtonville where Herbert Hoover made his first Greater Boston appearance as a presidential candidate.

Given a half-holiday from their classes, they swelled the volume of cheering with their childish voices and waved after him until his car was far on its way toward Watertown.

Newton motorcycle officers led the way at this portion of the flying trip and they disregarded one-way traffic rules as busy Newton Corners to speed up the journey of their charge.

Hoover responded by waving his hat.

The candidate's hat was off most of the time until Malden sq. was reached when he apparently began to notice the sharp weather. After that he kept it on as much as possible.

West Medford sq. was the scene of another demonstration and at Medford sq. the crowd ris so large that the State police lost control of the situation for a few minutes, finding it impossible to lead he procession through except at a very slow pace.

CROWD STOPS CAR.

The crush stopped the Hoover car momentarily at Medford st., Malden sq., Harvard sq., Cambridge and several other places.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were riding in the first car with Governor and Mrs. Fuller and Hoover's secretary, George Akerson. In Malden sq. 10,000 persons closed in on the machines and Governor Fuller, being in his own town, stood up and waved.

There was a shower of paper here and some of the paper tossed down on the procession of cars were Al Smith circulars. A few of these landed in the Hoover car. School children accorded the paraders another greeting at the Leonard school, Malden, where two of the children were dressed as Uncle Sam and an American sailor.

Through Everett the procession proceeded to Sullivan sq., then via Somerville to Walnut st. hill, Union sq., Harvard sq., Cambridge, Central sq., Kendall sq., Memorial drive, Technology, Harvard bridge, Commonwealth ave. and Dartmouth st. to Copley sq., St. James ave., Park sq. and on to the Common.

The coincidence of the arrival of the presidential nominee in Somerville with the regular noonday recess for the schools provided an inspiring sight in Union square, where hundreds of the youngsters congregated to cheer him on his way to Cambridge.

SIDEWALKS ARE LINED

The distinguished guest of the city was met at the Charlestown line by a platoon of Somerville police, who formed his escort, and by a group of leading Republicans in the city.

Among these were Mayor Leon T. Conwell, E. A. Howe, president of the board of Aldermen, and David Y. Ross, president of the city and ward Republican committee.

Somerville sidewalks along the route of the parade were early lined with Hoover admirers, who, however, were forced to wait until 12:45 o'clock, a half-hour after the scheduled time, for a glimpse of the Republican candidate.

HARVARD BOYS CHEER.

Led by Mayor Conwell and his party, the automobile procession entered the city by way of Broadway, proceeded through Walnut st. to Bow st., thence into Union sq. and took its departure for Cambridge by way of Washington st.

As the procession reached Memorial Hall, Cambridge, on the way to Harvard Square, a dense throng, largely composed of students, swept out into the street, brushed aside the police convoy, and closed in on Hoover's car, cheering enthusiastically.

Hoover waved his hand and bowed, and the cars which had been forced to slow down, increased their speed and rolled on to the square, where another big gathering was assembled. More cheers were given and again Hoover bowed and waved, but the machines did not slow up and the nominee was whirled swiftly along Massachusetts ave., towards Central Square and Boston.

Mayor Quinn silently viewed the passing of the rival party's candidate fro mthe steps of Cambridge city hall. He waved greetings to friends whom he recognized in some of the other cars.

Among the noblest of all the welcomes were those in Harvard sq. and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology buildings.

LUNCHEON AT STATLER.

Entering Boston over Harvard bridge, Hoover found the streets well lined with watchers and Copley sq. was thronged with thousands. At the Common the cars entered by a gate on Charles st. and proceeded to th ensarest possible point to the bandstand. The arrival was at 1:20, 50 minutes late.

After a brief address on the Common, in which he skirted politics and talked mostly about the Bay State's historic past, Hoover was whisked away to the Statler hotel for a luncheon tendered him by the Republican State Committee.

Women participated prominently in this luncheon, many of them being at the head table with the candidates for leading offices and other celebrities.

Retirement to Gov. Fuller's residence for rest and conference with various political grouns was the next event on the Hoover program, while Mrs. Hoover was given a personal reception at the Copley-Plaza hotel by Mrs. Fuller.

The Republican candidate's first broadside in his Massachusetts cruise was fired before 7000 persons at Springfield.

CROWD CHEERS HOOVER

The special Hoover train from Washington reached that city at 3:26, four minutes ahead of time, and was stopped on a spur at Court sq., where a temporary platform was in place.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, the former wearing a blue serge suit, with a black and white striped necktie and the latter dressed in black with a black fur piece, promptly descended from the rear platform, accompanied by Mayor Fordis C. Parker of Springfield, who had joined the party at Hartford, Ct.

When the group had ascended the platform Mayor Parker introduced Hoover as "the great American." The crowd roared back its endorsement of this appellation.

"Mr. Mayor and my friends of Springfield," began the candidate, "I appreciate your coming here at this time in the morning to give me your greetings and I do thank you for the generosity of your reception.

APPRECIATES WELCOME.

"It is always a great pleasure to come to Springfield. I have been with you on previous occasions and on various missions. I have always had a fine welcome in this city.

"You will not expect me at this time in the morning and with a large and important delivery to be made tonight to address you on political subjects. But your coming here does evidence your interest in this campaign and election, and it is of vital importance that the views of our people shall take an interest in our presidential election.

"This is a time when we have before us some of the most vital issues of our country. It is a time when the Republican party needs the support of every loyal American. Our party has presented to the country a record of seven and a half years of Calvin Coolidge. To the people of Massachusetts that should in itself be a recommendation.

PROGRAM OF POLICIES.

"And it presents more than a record. It presents a program of policies that are based upon a sense of responsibility for their execution. I trust that you will put that program your most earnest consideration and that the Republicans of Massachusetts will not fail in their registration and in their vote.

"It is critical to the Republican party that it should be continued to be supported by that pillar of Republicanism—Massachusetts.

"I again wish to thank you for the fine good will of your reception. It is heartening, it is strengthening, and it has been fine of you to come and to give me your greetings."

The stop at Springfield lasted only 13 minutes, during which time railroad employes switched locomotives, placing a big Hudson type on the Hoover special for the dash to Worcester and Boston.

BREAK POLICE LINES.

As the Hoover party returned to the platform of the rear car a large part of the crowd broke the police lines and surged to the platform to shake the candidate's hand, and Hoover shook hands with those nearest him, bowing repeating his thanks for the warm greeting.

It was two minutes past 10 when the train rolled into the Worcester station and no time was lost in guiding the candidate through a private passage to the rear of the station, where 8000 vociferously ardent admirers, jamming the approaches, extended a deafening welcome.

From a temporary platform underneath the overhead railroad track, Hoover expressed confidence in the continued loyalty of Worcester Republicans as a result of the Coolidge policies and achievements. He mentioned the diversified industries of Worcester which he had become thoroughly familiar as Secretary of Commerce.

SEEKS INDEPENDENT VOTE.

The Republicans "big gun" not only called for "the complete energy of every Republican in Massachusetts," but asked the full support of "that great body of independents who think as we do upon these questions that are now before the country.

"I wish to express my appreciation for your coming to meet me," he said. "It is evidence of your interest in the issues of this campaign. Those issues are as vital as have ever been presented to the American people."

Hoover was welcomed to Worcester by Acting Mayor Carl R. Brownell, who said that "the heart of the Commonwealth beats warmly for Herbert Hoover." The candidate's speech lasted slightly more than 15 minutes. He was off for Boston at 10:23.

Because of the receipt of 20,000 applications for reservations at the Arena, which will hold only 9000 at tonight's rally, according to Republican chiefs, an overflow rally will be held at Symphony Hall and leaders promise that Hoover will drop in on his way from the Arena to his train.

SPEECH TO BE BROADCAST.

The Hoover speech may be heard outside the Arena through amplifiers and at Tremont Temple and Symphony Hall by the same means. Radio hookups will carry his voice through 25 stations from coast to coast.

The Arena rally will be called to order at 7:30 by Chairman Prescott, who will introduce former Senator William M. Butler as presiding officer. Frank G. Allen, lieutenant-governor and candidate for Governor, will speak, as will Benjamin Loring Young, candidate for U. S. senator. Hoover will enter the hall at 8 p.m. and will be introduced by Governor Fuller.

The Symphony Hall meeting will begin at 8:30, with State Treasurer William M. Youngman, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, presiding. Joseph E. Warner, attorney-general; Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook and John W. Haigis, candidate for State treasurer, will be among the speakers.

Seven of Fuller"s Neighbors Show Their Colors

Seven South voters occupying a house opposite Governor Fuller's on Beacon st. carried their presidential convictions almost to the front door of the Fuller home today, despite the reception there to Mr. and Mrs. Hoover.

The adherents of the Smith cause affixed a photograph of the New York executive to the front wall of their residence.

Tonight it will be illuminated by a light for each Smith vote in the house across the street.

Mrs. Fuller and Mrs. Thayer Welcome Mrs. Hoover

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer were the first women to greet Mrs. Herbert Hoover on her arrival in Greater Boston with her illustrious candidate husband today.

In striking contrast to the garb of her greetees was the black mourning ensemble worn by Mrs. Hoover, whose father died only a few weeks ago.

The ensemble was in the modish wool and she wore also a pointed black fox scarf, black felt hat trimmed with black velvet, and black satin shoes.

Mrs. Fuller, however, wore an ensemble of grey, even to grey fox on her coat collar, and grey lizard shoes.

As the three women changed greetings, left th train at Newtonville, little Jean Cullen, nine, and her sisters Peggy, seven, and Eileen, five, presented Mrs. Hoover with a bunch of yellow roses.

The gathered throng, mostly women and children, sent up cries of welcome as Mrs. Hoover appeared, and the children waved small flags vigorously.

As the machine bearing the women in the automobile procession passed through Washington st. to Newton Corner at the start of the long ride in a circle through the suburbs hundreds of other women and children lined the curbs cheering and waving flags.

Mrs. Hoover smiled acknowledgment of the demonstrations.

How "B. O." almost broke up our engagement

(Body Odor)

THE merest gesture it was—but it told me clearly why she acted so coldly.

I was close to her—whispering softly—an offended look passed over her face.

Instantly I drew back. Why had her expression changed? Why was it that lately so many people looked at me queerly wherever I approached them? I was puzzled. But slowly a suspicion dawned upon me. "B.O." —body Odor!

My guess was right. I never could have won her if I hadn't discovered my trouble and how to end it. Today we are married. There's no "B.O." to mar our happiness now.

Ever guilty of "B.O."?

"Of course, not!" we promptly tell ourselves. Yet, like the chap above, the most fastidious of us may at times offend others—unknowingly.

We must perspire. Even on a cool day, our pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste. Our sense of smell becomes deadened to this familiar odor. But to others, it's unbearably offensive.

Avoid this risk! Use Lifebuoy, the purifying toilet soap. Its bland and abundant antiseptic lather deodorizes pores, ends "B.O."

Splendid for the skin!

This same mild, antiseptic Lifebuoy lather also purifies face pores—keeps complexions smooth and clear. Guards health, too—by removing germs. You'll learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse.

HEARST

The IMPORTANCE of LAUGHTER

YEARS ago kings kept jesters near their thrones to relieve the dull tedium of court life and lessen the heavy weight of ill-fitting crowns. Commoner people had their raree-shows—their Punch and Judys—and, with little to wear and less to eat, laughed at the dancing puppets until they forgot cold and hunger and the hard dreariness of their lives.

Nowadays there are fewer kings, and men have more to wear and eat, but laughter is no less a necessity. Care and pain and sorrow still exist, and humor is as needful as it ever was to relieve the monotony of life—to cheer the jaded mind and take the thought away from tired bodies.

Nowadays, instead of the court jester, we have the professional humorist and the artist. Instead of Punch and Judy, a hundred merry characters, full of quaint conceits and merry quips, come daily into the home—the gloom-dispelling cohorts of "The Comics." Theirs is a fine and delightful task—"Wholesale Distributors of Laughter" to millions of customers.

Originating in the Hearst Newspapers, "The Comics" are welcomed everywhere and their droll doings have become a part of the daily life of the nation. Jiggs and Maggie, Happy Hooligan, Spark Plug and Barney Google, Polly and her Pals, Tillie the Toiler, Margy, Krazy Kat, the Katzenjammer Kids, Toots and Casper, Abie Kabibble, the inimitable creations of Tad—they are as real as humans, and the part they play in keeping the world running smoothly and happily is beyond computation.

Nowhere is the sense of humor keener than in America, and, because Hearst Newspapers are American newspapers and are printed for the great American people, they invest many fortunes each year in humor—in "Comics," clever paragraphs, witty observations on life, lively jingles, jokes by the thousand. All that is brightest and best and funniest is carried into the homes of over five million families, to put sunshine into the lives of more than twenty million readers and drive dull care away.

The salaries of the Hearst staff of "Comic" artists and other humorists are royal, but these men have a royal task. They are jesters to Their Majesties, the American People!

HUB COUPLES OF IMPORTANCE HONEYMOONING ABROAD, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

The Francis Lee Higginsons, 3d, and Merrill Griswolds to Take Up Residence in Beacon Hill Section

PLEASANT ENOUGH TASKS FALL TO THE LOT OF TWO NEWLY MADE BENEDICTS, THAT of introducing a Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, 3 d, and a Mrs. Merrill Griswold to Boston's inner smart circles. Young men who go afield for their brides find this duty a prideful one, especially when they win for their own such interestingly individual young women as the former Miss Lucas and the attractive New Yorker who was Miss Lillian Lowell. And it now appears that Mrs. Higginson and Mrs. Griswold, such time as the honeymoon wanes and brides and bridegrooms come sailing home from abroad, will be chatelaines of apartments in the same neighborhood of Mayfair if not beneath the same roof.

MRS. GRISWOLD WILL BE LISTED WITH BOSTON EXCLUSIVES IN THE SMALL AND super important Social Register as having a town establishment at 101 Chestnut st. And probably the young Higginsons will be giving their first dinner party to distinguished relatives in much the same smart locality, down at the foot of The Hill where galleries and tucked-away shops stand side by side with imposing apartments and the Basin glints brightly hard by. Of the Higginson family circle that went to England to see young Francis Higginson, 3d, wed, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sprague Goodwin are staying on for a while, and will motor through Spain before embarking for home.

ALTHOUGH MR. GRISWOLD and his bride have seen many of the world's important places and sailed in and out of ports innumerable still they do the inevitable thing, inevitable with their set that is, and do a foreign trip as their honeymoon. Only so recently as late September the Griswold-Lowell marriage rites were celebrated in New York and now the happy couple are bound for England and the Continent, to do England more or less briefly and southern France leisurely, so the chances are that when Christmas comes they will be home again, just as the mid-winter season reaches its frothiest heights.

SELDOM NOWADAYS DOES Mrs. Bryce J. Allan spend an entire winter, or even a portion of the snowy season, here in town. Invariably are her summers passed at lovely Allanbank, her North Shore place. And quite as invariably does she journey across the ocean to France when the maples turn golden and red and shutters go up on handsome establishments along the plutocratic strip that is the North Shore. Mrs. Allan has a villa at Cannes, sufficient reason truly for her annual departure, were it not also a fact that she enjoys the prestige of high place in Continental society. She sails in a few weeks and will be abroad the entire winter.

EVEN WITH A FLAPPING RAINCOAT AS ACCOMPANIMENT to afternoon's formality of gray topper and white spats, Henry G. Vaughan is never other than a commanding figure. As chairman for the race committee at Norfolk's meet he was everywhere about the course, and his stentorian tones rolled out frequently, when the gallery overran the course and there was danger of collision during a tardy finish. Dampness and leaden skies did not lessen his enthusiasm nor the pristine glory of topper and spats, aforementioned. Mr. Vaughan is wholeheartedly the horseman, even though the weather—and Saturday's was not encouraging—is dispiriting. Whatever brightness bloomed about the course came not from sunshine, but from rainbow-hued raincoats and glossy slickers worn by the feminine contingent.

MRS. WILLIAM DEXTER'S BLONDNESS COMPLEMENTED the bright King's blue of her coat and cap-like hat, which were as impervious to the elements as was the thick white coat of her Highland terrier, who never lost his bored demeanor even when "Castle Bar," Mrs. Dexter's hunter, came in third in the Norfolk steeplechase. Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, 3d, looked every bit her Vera Howell days in a shining coat of bright red, belted and collared with soldierly trigness. Mrs. John K. Howard, being a curly-haired blonde slip despite her matron's status, was brightly in the picture with a gay blue coat and hat to match.

THE HIGHLAND LASS FURNISHED Miss Helen Scott with a costume motif. Her velvet jacket topped a kilted skirt gaily plaided, and her hat was of velvet in keeping with the Scotch ensemble. Mrs. Henry St. John Smith's rain-defying wrap was a gay thing in burnt orange. Miss Barbara Forbes, recently back from Baltimore and the marriage of Duncan Thayer to Miss McHenry, was in woven costume alternating broad bands of wine red and golden yellow. Miss Virginia Gardner, who went to Baltimore for the same smart nuptials, wore a yellow beige coat and cap-like hat to match. Miss Ruth Neyhart was not merely the dilletante looker-on at the races. She had a horse entered in the Hunts Teams Steeplechase in the team that ran for Millwood.

QUANSETT'S ORANGE AND BLUE RODE HOME WINNER OF the teams out for the Nathaniel Thayer Memorial Cup, making two legs the William Almys now have on the handsome trophy presented by Mrs. Bayard Thayer in memorial to her son. The Almy family and their connections were well represented on the course and in the gallery. Mrs. Robert Almy was there, of course. What race meet or society horse show is ever without her animated presence? The John Wright Adies (Mary Louise Almy) were there, and so was Mrs. George Porter Hunter. William Almy, Jr., led the team home on his Hardbrooks with Gerald Dempsey riding "Lady Correen" and Lawrence Grinnell astride "Second Attempt."

SOME THUMBNAIL SKETCHES OF THE GALLERY AT THE Norfolk meet: Pretty Mrs. Gaspar Bacon snug as could be in raincoat and rubber boots, a bright scarf tied at her throat; Mrs. L. Tucker Burr, Jr., with a small daughter, both attired for the afternoon's moisture in warm and wooly tweeds; Mrs. John L. Grandin in a swagger swinging cape coat comfortable as could be and brightly plaided; Mrs. Freddy L. Dabney, Jr., holding court with her usual ease and gaiety; Mrs. George L. Dabney, a keen rallbird; Mrs. Alvin Sortwell, arrayed in rainy weather togs, mother to a lively brood of Sortwell daughters and wife to the popular gentleman rider, "Pete" Sortwell.

MORE SKETCHES: LITTLE MISS VIRGINIA TOLMAN WEARING a yellow hat, bright as sunlight; her mother, Mrs. F. Harold Tolman, wrapped warmly in furs; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Marshall of the Jacobs Hill Hunt set, using a stone wall for a grandstand; the Charles Pelham Curtises, Jr., with a child or two, taking in the meet; Mrs. Hugh Scott, dashing from one jump to another; John Watson, who loves a sporting event of any sort, racing, polo, football or rowing; Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., in tan coat and soft hat to complement her brogues; John R. Macomber and Bayard Warren, extremely busy in official capacities, and Hugh Bancroft, Jr., with arm in sling, accepting the Macomber plate for his "Yas Sar" finishing first in the Thayer Memorial race.

MISS OLGA BORGFELDT, at the Grand Hotel, Mackinac Island, receives instructions in gunnery. Her teeth receive three times a day the safeguard Pepsodent affords.

Blame Film for Cloudy Teeth

You must remove film twice daily. Now dentists urge a special film-removing dentifrice.

THE teeth of 9 people out of 10, it's proved, are dingy because a film coat covers them.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel this film. It absorbs stains from food and smoking. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It is the chief cause of the commoner tooth and gum disorders. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Film must be removed each day. Ordinary brushing fails to do it successfully. So dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

No other way will make teeth as sparkling white. Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 So. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, or ask druggist for full-size tube.

To sell Pepsodent for less would mean removing the costly agents for which dentists recommend it.

SAFETY DRIVE STARTS TODAY

The annual "safety drive" in Massachusetts to make the highways of the State safer and to make automobile drivers "saner" was opened today by Governor Fuller and Registrar of Motor Vehicles George A. Parker.

The safety campaign will extend to November 30 and headquarters have been opened at 6 Beacon st., with branches in Worcester, Springfield and Pittsfield.

It is hoped during the campaign to reach at least 1,000,000 persons by personal contacts and many traffic experts have volunteered their services for the period of the campaign.

Three silver cups have been offered to the mayors and boards of aldermen whose cities or towns show the greatest percentage of decrease in accidents during the period of the campaign.

Police authorities throughout the State are co-operating in the campaign.

Archduke Albert May Win Throne of Hungary

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 15 (AP)—Archduke Albert, son of the wealthy Hapsburg Archduke Frederick, today appeared to be the leading contender for the throne of Hungary, vacant since the abdication of King Charles in 1918.

Premier Bethlen announced in the course of a speech at Oedenburg, West Hungary, that a referendum would be held shortly to select a king. The Prime Minister said he was against bestowing the crown on Archduke Otto, 16-year-old son of Charles. The youth is at school in Luxembourg.

After the abdication of King Charles a Republic and a Soviet were formed in Hungary, both being short-lived. The country was declared a monarchy under the regency of Admiral Nicholas Horty in 1920. Charles made two ineffectual attempts to regain the crown before his death in 1922. Another possible claimant to the throne is Archduke Joseph Francis, the son of Archduke Joseph.

Albert is looked upon with favor by the Hungarian people generally because he is a Hungarian and also because he remained in the country throughout the Red terror.

MOVE TO AVERT HUB TONG WAR AFTER SIX DIE

With the flame of tong warfare flickering in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Washington, Boston's Chinatown was heavily patrolled today to prevent an outbreak here.

Six Chinese were slain in the cities named, the victim in Philadelphia being a resident of Boston, and local authorities were grimly determined to halt the growing death toll.

One arrest was made in the Hub's Chinese district when Sergt. James O'Neil, of Lagrange st. station, captured Chin Can, 37, in an untenanted building at 83 Harvard st.

According to the police Chin Can had been attending a pipe-smoking session in a nearby opium den, and a loaded revolver with a bandolier of cartridges were found on his person, they said.

Can was arraigned in municipal court charged with possessing a revolver and also with possessing opium. He pleaded not guilty to both charges and was held in $500 for hearing October 27.

Plainclothes men patrolled Chinatown, while others stood guard over headquarters of the rival tongs, the Hip Sing and On Leong. The organization had been at peace since the signing of a formal pact March 27, 1927.

The flash of guns disturbed the serenity of Chinese settlements again on Sunday, when a waiter, playing cards with 11 other Hip Sing tongsmen and a neutral, was shot down in a New York apartment.

Less than two hours later a laundryman, believed to be a Hip Sing adherent, was killed in the On Leon district of Chicago, and in Philadelphia Lin Sing, 73, of Boston, an On Leong, was slain in a pistol duel with two other Chinese.

SMITH HAS HOPE OF CARRYING ILLINOIS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

Enroute with Governor Smith in Illinois, Oct. 15 (INS)—Governor Al Smith left the South and its turbulent receptions today and struck westward through Southern Illinois and Missouri.

His objective was Sedalia, Mo., where tomorrow night he will deliver one of the major speeches of his border states tour. Governor Smith left Kentucky and Tennessee entirely satisfied with the situation from the Democratic standpoint, in both states he was told that prior to his coming there was considerable doubt as to the outcome in November, but that his visit and his speeches had turned the tide toward Democratic victory three weeks hence. Almost without exception the state leaders in Tennessee and Kentucky speeded the Democratic nominee on his way with these assurances. A month ago they were pessimistic.

The Smith special arrived at St. Louis at 11:03 a. m.

WANTS TO WIN ILLINOIS

The Smith special cut across Southern Illinois today, bound for St. Louis, where the principal stop of the day was scheduled. Illinois is one of those states which the Democrats have been looking at with covetous eyes, notwithstanding its traditional Republicanism. Not in a generation has Illinois cast her 29 electoral votes for a Democrat for President, save in 1912, the year of the Republican split.

Nevertheless, Governor Smith and his advisers are exceedingly hopeful this year, their hopes are predicted upon the agricultural dissatisfaction in the Republican districts downstate, and the enormous wet vote in Chicago.

THREE NIGHTS IN CHICAGO

The importance of Illinois to the Democrats is exemplified by the fact that Governor Smith will spend considerable time in the state. He cut across Southern Illinois today enroute to Sedalia, and Wednesday he will be back in the state, not to leave it until Saturday. Three nights will be spent in Chicago. Governor Smith has not stayed anywhere, save Albany, that long since he was nominated for the presidency. He is going to make a real bid for Illinois.

Governor Smith started into his second week of the Southern and border states tour refreshed from a good rest in Louisville. He believes his speech in Louisville Saturday night was probably the most effective of the campaign.

2 Slayers and Banker Are Put to Work in Prison Shops

The shoe industry gained two novices and the underwear trade one today at state prison.

Stephen J. Hoppe, who admitted the murder of Patrolman Alfred N. Hollis in Quincy, and John Tartar, who pleaded guilty in the second degree to murdering Mary Mahan, South Boston cabaret singer, were put to work in the prison shoe shop.

Hoppe and Tartar arrived at the prison last week to begin life sentences.

Norman H. White, former bank director, member of the Legislature and candidate for Governor, was put to work in the underwear department. He is serving a sentence of from three to five years for bank larceny.

SEN. BLAINE IS OUT FOR SMITH IN WISCONSIN

Boscobel, Wis., Oct. 15 (AP)—John J. Blaine, United States Senator and former Governor of Wisconsin, a Progressive Republican, today announced his support for Governor Smith of New York for President.

Senator Blaine's statement followed one of three weeks ago in which he said he could not support the Republican candidate because in his opinion "Hoover is opposed to practically all the policies of the great mass of Progressive Republicans and independent forward thinking people of America."

MEXICANS FLAY LEGIONERS

Mexico City, Oct. 15 (AP)—Posters denouncing them as "assassins, strike-breakers and American Fascisti" today stared down upon 100 members of the American Legion from the walls of various buildings.

Even the wall of the American consulate had been plasarded with the denunciation when the legionnaires arrived for a visit of several days.

"Oblige the assassins and strike-breakers of the Legion to abandon our territory as soon as possible," the posters read in part. "Away with the Fascist North American Legionnaires. Down with the man who tried but failed to conquer Mexico—Gen. Pershing."

The Legionnaires are guests at the home of Thomas A. Robinson, son-in-law of President Calles and a member of the executive committee of the American Legion of Mexico.

"REPUBLICAN LIBERALS" ORGANIZE SMITH CLUB

New York, Oct. 15 (INS)—Organization of prominent "Republican Liberals" into a "Smith for President" movement, the indorsement by five educators of Governor Smith's candidacy and charges by Congressman Loring Black of Brooklyn, that Republican money had been used to "buy Southern newspapers for Hoover," were the outstanding developments in Democratic circles here today.

The "Liberal Republicans" issued a statement declaring the Republican party is in grave danger of becoming the prohibition party, adding that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." The organization listed many prominent names on its roster, including Arthur Curtiss James, railroad magnate; August Heckscher, Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of a former Republican Governor of Massachusetts, Pierre S. Dupont and others.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BRAN AND CONSTIPATION

Thousands of people eat bran regularly for the healthful roughage it provides. It is a splendid practice. But be sure you are really getting all the roughage you need when you eat bran. Doctors say it takes 100% bran to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only accomplish part-way results. That is why they fail!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. Just two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

You'll like the flavor and crispness of ALL-BRAN. Serve with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Mix with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

COBURN'S KLAN MURDER LAID TO EVANS

Michigan City, Oct. 15 (AP)—D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, told Atty.-Gen. Arthur L. Gillion at State prison today that he could prove Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the klan, was responsible for the fatal shooting of Col. W. S. Coburn, Atlanta, Ga., in 1923.

Stephenson, life-term prisoner, said he could prove Evans "poisoned the mind of Phil Fox," the man who did the shooting. Stephenson said Evans had told him on several occasions Coburn must be removed or he, Evans, would be ruined.

Prior to taking the testimony, S. H. Sullivan, Washington attorney, offered a general objection to all of questions. He objected to the presence of newspapermen and warned that publication of the testimony "which might be derogatory or libelous to the Klan will be vigorously pursued by said Klan and its officers.

$37,500,000 FOR EVANS

Atty.-Gen. Gillion brought suit to evict the Klan from Indiana several months ago, charging that it had been given a charter "under false and fraudulent representation by its officers" as to its character. The State also charged the true purpose of the organization was "to gain secret control of politics and government."

Stephenson told Gillion that Imperial Wizard Evans had received approximately one-half of $75,000,000 or more collected by the organization throughout the United States. At no time, he said, had the organization expended funds derived from dues for charitable or patriotic purposes.

He said that some money collected at meetings had been used for those purposes, however. Stephenson said that as a Klan organizer he had received $1 of every $10 membership, and what remained, after expenses, were paid belonged to him. He said local organizations were given $4 and that $5 went to Evans.

"MUST KILL COBURN"

The Klan in Indiana collected approximately $2,500,000, Stephenson said.

He said he and Evans discussed the status of Coburn on July 12, 1923, at Buckeye Lake, O., and that in that conversation Evans said 'If Coburn isn't gotten out of the way, he will ruin me.'

"I said 'Do you mean kill him'?" Stephenson said.

The witness said Evans answered in the affirmative and that virtually the same conversation occurred later at Altoona, Mich., and at the Gibson Hotel, Cincinnati. Stephenson said Evans wanted to know if he could put him in touch with some one who would kill Coburn, but that he replied he was not "in that business."

Stephenson was convicted of murdering an Indianapolis girl in 1925 and sentenced to life imprisonment.

8 HELD AFTER SHOOTING AT WEDDING

Eight wedding guests were "guests" of Everett police today as the result of a mysterious shooting that put a bullet in the neck of Joseph Kelley, 19, of Thompson pl., Everett, and abruptly ended the wedding festivities.

Just before the shooting, Annie Sala, 18, had become the bride of Ralph Di Tucci of Main st., Everett, and the jollification was being held at the Sala home in Bow st., Everett.

Kelley, according to what police were able to learn, became involved in an altercation with several other guests. The argument adjourned to the street, was broken up by a policeman, and then was resumed at Bow st. and Jerome ct., where several shots were fired.

One of them struck Kelley in the neck and today he was at Haymarket Relief Hospital in a serious condition.

The eight "guests" are held for questioning.

"A TUXEDO in Every Wardrobe"

Said a good dresser—"Today the Tuxedo is as essential in one's wardrobe as the blue serge suit of a few years ago."

Possibly Scott & Company has contributed not a little to the popularity of the Tuxedo—by many years of specialization—by building in their own Boston workrooms, custom-quality Tuxedos, ready-to-wear.

Will Any Man Love a Girl With Past?

CHAPTER 6
"Love Lies Bleeding"

MORNING broke after the few short hours of tropical darkness to find Richard Meredith pacing the bedraggled street of the little village, his usually placid features drawn with a great suffering.

Never before had he worried an iota over the favor of any girl in his ken. During those far off days in the technical school he had played through the usual college phases of "puppy love." Even at the time he had taken none of them seriously, for always before him was the overwhelming ambition to succeed at his chosen profession.

And that, he knew, would lead him over the hills and far away to lands, beyond the peaceful confines of town or city life, far past the pales of civilization where no woman whom he wished to be his wife would venture to follow.

Iron-willed in his determination to succeed at the greatest and most daring of all the engineering crafts, he was a man of the finest sympathies and this very inner gentleness had prevented him from "playing for keeps" in any affair of the heart. It had been the backbone of a chivalry at which his college companions had good-naturedly jested.

"Sir Galahad of the Transit" they had called him in the engineering school. And yet, despite the teasing, he had remained true to a great ideal which was so sacred within the inner temple of his soul that he would not discuss it with his closest friends.

Some day, he had told himself, thousands of times, he would complete some monumental task of railroad and bridge building, and then return to the comforts, the amiable luxuries of the city. A suburban home close by some great metropolis he would be his . . . his and his wife's. And that wife would find him, he had vowed in his solitary day-dreams, just as fine as Toledo steel in character, in body and in memories as he would expect her to be. Even as he had played the game four-square to every wind so would he expect her to do.

A blue-eyed lass, of gentle birth and rearing, cultured in all those finer things which are the tradition of the better old American families. Demure, unafraid, sharing his innermost dreams, an honor to his name and to her own, fit companion for that finer social circle which he determined should be his life environment when the last big task had been completed in the rough-and-tumble outside world of the bridge and railroad builder.

And they should have sons and daughters worthy of that ideal!

His children should never venture into the brusque, bitter, brutal world of construction which he had

HASSELL LANDS IN N. Y., UNSUNG BY CROWDS

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Bearing the marks of hardship suffered after their forced landing in Greenland on their attempted flight last August from Rockford, Ill. to Stockholm, Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, co-pilots of the "Greater Rockford," arrived today on the steamship Frederick VIII.

When the fliers reached the Battery on the municipal reception boat Manhattan, they made their way through a crowd of several thousand persons who lined the water front in hope of seeing the Graf Zeppelin sail over New York.

The spectators, for the most part, did not recognize the fliers and they entered automobiles and were whisked up Broadway to City Hall.

Seymour P. Dandz, representing Mayor Walker, and Mayor Burt M. Allen of Rockford, boarded the liner at quarantine.

Hassell was crippled in both legs from frost bite and Cramer's hands bore more than a score of scars from the bites of Greenland mosquitoes. But in the joy of the homecoming and greeting old friend, they forgot their handicaps.

They reiterated their intention of making another attempt next spring, provided they get financial backing, to establish an air route to Europe via Greenland and Iceland.

FORD IN 'LADY LIZ' OPENS ROAD

PRESENTS HIGHWAY AT INN TO STATE

Henry Ford today threw open to motorists the 8000-foot stretch of road which was recently completed at his expense in Sudbury, near Wayside Inn.

Seated at the wheel of a new Ford sedan the auto magnate drove slowly the full length of the road and, turning about, sped back to his starting place at high speed. The road was then formally opened to the public.

In the machine with Ford were William Williams, state commissioner of public works; County Commissioner Nat Bowditch, and F. D. Sahn, district engineer of the State Department of Public Works.

After the road officially had been opened, Ford elaborated, in a statement to newspapermen, on his political views previously recorded.

PROHIBITION AN ISSUE

He said:

"Prohibition is an issue in this campaign because it is a part of our prosperity.

"We cannot have industrial prosperity without sobriety, and in this country at least we have not been able to get sobriety without prohibition. It may be that Americans go to extremes. The American woman will tell you the American home does not object to an extreme of sober living.

"The first effect of a reversal of prohibition would be a decline in wages. For that reason, American labor does not oppose prohibition; it knows the relation between sobriety and high earning power. When the American workman and his wife are both convinced of the benefits of the present system you can hardly imagine them overturning it.

FORD CHOPS WOOD

"Mr. Hoover embodies this national belief about the connection between prosperity and prohibition. He favors a continuance of prohibition, because he favors a continuance of the upward trend of prosperity. I think election day will show this is where the majority of the American people agree with him."

Ford said he does not plan to go aloft in the Graf Zeppelin, although he admitted having received an invitation to do so some time ago.

Ford chopped wood for nearly a half-hour this morning and then inspected the new ballroom which is just being completed at Wayside Inn.

Garden Association Women in Big Work

THE Women's National Farm and Garden Association concluded its second annual meeting at the Wayside Inn, Sudbury.

Mrs. Henry Ford, who has just been re-elected president of the association, was hostess to 160 delegates from nine different Eastern and Middle Western States.

A very delicious luncheon was served in the new dining room, after which the ladies returned to the new ballroom to finish all business that had been carried over from the morning session.

Although Mrs. Ford had more than enough to occupy her mind, she very graciously gave me a few moments of her time when the meeting adjourned. I asked her for a message to clubwomen in general and New England clubwomen in particular. This is what she said:

"Tell them that organized women in America have an important part to play in the development of better homes and communities so long as they keep their feet on the ground and deal with PRACTICAL and REAL problems."

WHAT CLUB IS DOING

I don't suppose there is much I can say about Mrs. Ford (the wife of one of the four richest men in America) that some other writer hasn't said much more cleverly. Doubtless the highest tribute it is possible for one woman to pay another is to say just the sweetest "mother songs" might never have been written with her in mind.

She is sincerely charming, and an unaffectedly genuine as the strand of oriental pearls she wore with her simple black satin frock. Her old-fashioned gold wedding band, surmounted by her engagement ring (no other jewelry) was as much of an indication of her character as anything I might mention.

Perhaps I ought to tell you what the club of which Mrs. Ford is president is endeavoring to do for the public.

They are offering the services and advice of trained experts in farm and garden planting problems, furnishing sunlight bill-boards, bringing producer and consumer together, preserving species of wild flowers, encouraging vocational training in agriculture, horticulture and handicrafts.

By arranging for classes in handicrafts to preserve knowledge of ancient types. Connecting with State and Federal agencies and other organizations in securing rural home information and helping to bring modern equipment into rural homes. By developing civic pride through activities and propaganda which tends to encourage country life and the preservation of natural beauty.

Truly an admirable organization you'll agree, dealing with practical and well needed issues," as Mrs. Ford said in her message to other clubwomen.

Right Way for Tea

THERE is really only one right way to make it so as to enjoy all its delicious flavor. First, rinse out the tea pot with boiling water. Second, put one teaspoon of tea in the pot for each cup of tea.

Third, pour fresh boiled, bubbling water on the tea leaves. Fourth, steep for five or six minutes and serve promptly. Always serve with milk or cream. One pound of my favorite orange pekoe tea makes 300 cups, making the cost per cup really less than a third of a cent.

Surely little enough for the enjoyment and refreshment most women obtain from their cup of cheer. The degree of enjoyment we get from our tea depends both upon the method of its brew and upon what brand you buy.

We choose the kind you'll find in the Martha Lee Kitchen because we know that this orange pekoe tea is made from the finest crop, blended with skill and accuracy. It is the choice of discriminating tea drinkers the world over

If you will try this tea and try our method of making it, we can assure you a delightful invigorating drink for every occasion. Perhaps you are making tea almost exactly according to these directions and yet not quite.

Perhaps you do not warm the tea pot—perhaps you do not brew the tea long enough—you may not be careful that the water is bubbling when you pour it on the leaves. Each of the these small matters is important.

They form the difference between a weak, unsatisfactory concoction and real tea. The world's most refreshing and delightful drink Orange pekoe tea—the kind we are thinking of—is a fine tea to drink, a fine tea to give your husband, a fine tea to offer your guest.

Points to Jot Down

HERE are points to remember:

Oven Temperature—250 to 300 is equivalent to a slow oven 300 to 350—moderate. 350 to 400—moderately hot 400 to 450—hot. 450 to 500—very hot.

Tables of measures:

3 teaspoons equals	1 tablespoon
16 tablespoons equal	1 cup
2 cups	1 pint
2 pints	1 quart
4 cups	1 quart
2 cups granulated sugar	1 pound
4 cups flour	1 pound
2 cups butter	1 pound
2 tablespoons butter	1 ounce
2 tablespoons liquid	1 ounce
4 tablespoons flour	1 ounce
1 square unsweetened chocolate	1 ounce

In making pastry use the least possible amount of water. Work in the shortening with the fingers or a knife. Handle the pastry as little as possible. Never knead it. Roll it very quickly.

Brushing the Under Crust of a Pie

Brushing the under crust of a pie with white of egg will prevent it from absorbing the filling and becoming soggy.

Is Made of the Best

A MIGHTY handy thing to have around the house is a can of ready-to-heat-and-eat corned beef hash.

I'm rather fussy about the ingredients that go into hash. All too often one finds bits of gristle and lumps of fat where there should be only clear meat and potatoes. But in the canned hash that we use in the Martha Lee Kitchen I know I will find only superior ingredients.

Recently this formula has been improved to suit New England tastes making it the one and only perfect ready-to-heat-and-eat hash of my acquaintance

Now, perhaps this I place a generous tablespoon of butter in a heavy aluminum frying pan—the kind that wears forever. Then I put in my hash and setting the pan on an asbestos plate, let it brown very slowly.

When I have a golden crust I turn it out omelet fashion, garnish with parsley and serve piping hot, with chili sauce.

Corned beef croquettes are quickly and easily made with this ready prepared hash also. To the contents of one can, add one or two eggs, a tablespoon of chopped parsley or a little finely chopped green pepper if liked, additional salt and pepper to taste, and enough soft bread crumbs to make the mixture stiff enough to shape into croquettes.

After they are shaped and rolled in beaten egg and finely sifted bread crumbs, I put them on ice for an hour. Then fry in deep fat to golden brown. Serve piping hot with brown gravy, catsup or chili sauce.

The same firm making this hash also make a ready-to-heat-and-eat beef stew that truly has all the flavor and zest of the kind that mother used to make. It's a mighty handy thing to have on the emergency shelf and once you've made its acquaintance I think you'll find a place for it on many regular menus, too.

Seasoning Is Good

ON every New England housewife's pantry shelf I am sure there is a little yellow and red package of poultry seasoning, which she depends on to give that delightful flavoring for meats of all kinds—for fish, flesh or fowl—and often in soups, stews and casserole dishes

Did you know that if you set out to duplicate this poultry seasoning you would have to buy more than 30 cans of spices, and even then it is doubtful whether you could ever hope to blend these spic s with the exact accuracy of the formula that has been in use since 1867.

The herbs and spices that go to make up this poultry seasoning are gathered from France, Jamaica, India, Java, China and other countries.

Carefully selected and blended under a proven formula, they combine to make the standard of poultry seasoning with which we are all familiar and which always produces such uniformly good results

Chef Will Be Guest

GET out your calendar and put a circle around Wednesday, Oct. 17. This is the day when Dominic Discillo, chef of the Hotel Brunswick will be the guest of honor in the Martha Lee Kitchen 5 Winthrop sq., and will give a lesson in Practical Cookery there.

Remember the day, October 17, the time, 2 p. m., and the place in the Martha Lee Kitchen, 5 Winthrop sq.

Mr. Discillo is a native of Abruzzi, Italy, and his first chef's position was with the Des Palmas Hotel in Palermo. Later he was connected with other prominent hotels on the continent and twenty-five years ago, came to Boston.

Here for twelve years he was assistant chef of the Hotel Lenox, later chef of the Lake Spofford Club, Spofford, N. H., also of the Plimpton Hotel, the Hotel Sheridan and the Argonaut Club

Since then, he has been presiding over the cuisine of the Hotel Brunswick. It is through the courtesy of Mr. L. C. Prior, proprietor of both the Lenox and Brunswick Hotels, that we are to have the pleasure and privilege of this lesson from so famous a chef.

Given privately, such a lesson would be at least $25 or in a class $5 apiece, but here it is offered you without charge of any kind by the Boston Evening American

If you would give the touch of a first class chef to your simplest dishes, don't fail to be on hand to take advantage of this lesson next Wednesday.

Pastry Flour for Cake, Gingerbread

Pastry flour is preferred for cake, cookies and gingerbread because the larger amount of starch makes lighter, more tender cakes than bread flour. In cake mixing remember that the shortening should be creamed until very soft and the sugar added gradually. Beat the whole mass light and fluffy. Beat the eggs thoroughly before adding and beat the batter briskly after adding flour.

IT GIVES new zest and flavor to the most familiar foods. Try it in soups and gravies,

KREISLER'S ART APPLAUDED AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

Fritz Kreisler played the series of Sunday concerts at Symphony Hall with a capacity audience. Repeated visits of this artist do not dim both the eagerness of those who crowd the auditorium and the appreciation of their performance in applauding his playing.

Mr. Kreisler had arranged a rather severe program, calling Bach, Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven to his aid. Each of these masters must be played by the violinist with a certain degree of austerity, which does not permit the display of the brilliant technique of which Kreisler is a master. It requires a musician to appreciate this kind of playing, and there is nothing to make the audience applaud with the gusto of listening piano music always produces. It is passive.

The opening number of the third group was an exquisite arrangement of the Rigaudon from Rameau's opera Dardanus. It was played by Kreisler and his accompanist, Carl Lamson, with a delicacy and finesse which would have added to any program. The performance of the Brahms sonata was also of the highest order, and the performance of the Beethoven concerto, the posthumous orchestral piece by Kreisler should have aroused much comment as it is also a master piece. It remains a mystery to one how a violinist can play a part of the bow twice according to the direction given by the composer and not produce two different effects. The only explanation is that there is nothing to make the audience aware of it and the playing is done for the composer's satisfaction. The Brahms concerto is a masterpiece of its kind, and was the inspiration of Victor Herbert's first violin concerto. It requires a great deal of virility and endurance, and the fact that Kreisler played it as well as he did after playing the Beethoven concerto is a tribute to his physical strength.

Talk about an enthusiastic audience! Such a one greeted Ruth Draper when she appeared for the second time in Jordan Hall. Her program was not unlike that of her first appearance, but there was a new group of monologues which were given for the first time in Boston. Miss Draper is an artist and a character actress of the highest order. Those who have seen her in her monologues, "Three Women and a Man," "Doctor's Office," "Three Generations" and "Italian Lesson" will realize what a treat was in store for those who heard her for the first time. Her program is so varied that it is impossible to describe it. Suffice it to say that it was a program of character studies, each one of which was a masterpiece. Miss Draper is an actress of the highest order, and her art is of the kind that will be remembered as long as those who have seen her can remember. Her pantomime is so perfect that it is impossible to tell where the pantomime ends and the monologue begins. Her voice is a delight to hear, and her diction is perfect. Her program was so well received that she will be heard in a second concert, at which a number of extra numbers had been completed.

Managers Plot to Knockout Jack Dempsey

HARVARD NEEDS TO IMPROVE

Team Must Show More Than In First Two Games to Beat Army

By JOE CASHMAN

Harvard's dress rehearsal for the Army game is about finished. A few more practice sessions and the Crimson eleven must take the field against the Cadets.

Never before was there as much general interest in a local grid game as there is in the meeting which will take place in the Stadium on Saturday afternoon, and the question uppermost in the minds of the public is:

What chance has Harvard of winning?

That, ladies and gentlemen, is very hard to say on this fine Monday morning, if you ask me.

For the only public displays of football ability Harvard has given this year have been in games with Springfield and North Carolina, and, unfortunately for the experts if not for the Crimson, neither opponent was formidable enough to enable anybody to get a real line on the strength of the latest Horween machine.

One thing is certain, though. Harvard must do better than in either of its first two games to be in the running Saturday, unless the Army is greatly over-rated.

This doesn't mean that the Cambridge eleven didn't show a lot of promise against Springfield and North Carolina. It did, against both of them.

HARVARD HAS POWER

It showed a lot of power both offensive and defensive as well as a fine knowledge of the rudiments of the pastime, in the opening game.

And its work in the second contest was a marked improvement over that in the opener.

But, in spite of all this, all that can be said about the team now is that it has promise and it will take a lot more than promise to keep the Army in check.

To our way of thinking after watching the team in action in both of its games, what it needs most is to acquire the knack of keeping traveling on high from the start to finish.

In both tussles it had spells when it worked like a great machine, fast power it and smooth. Then, for some unknown reason, it would seem to cease to click and look like an entirely different team.

That was especially true in last Saturday's contest. For 13 minutes in the second period it swept the opposition aside as though they were so many straw men and smashed its way to three touchdowns. It could not be denied during this mad rush and it is doubtful if any defense in the country could have stopped it at that time.

But in all other periods of the game it was just an average football team, one that the Army could undoubtedly beat.

Of course there was no reason for the team keeping up that second period pace for the rest of the game.

TOUGH OPPONENTS AHEAD

In fact, it would have been unwise for it to do so with the Army and Dartmouth games just around the corner.

But this doesn't excuse the bad football the team displayed for the greater part of the second half of the game. The attack, which had been working so beautifully just a short while before ceased to function; the defense which had been impregnable started to give way, the generalship which had left nothing to be desired, became most inept.

And you can't explain all this away as so many try to do, by saying that the players tired or that the other side improved.

Sure, the players tired, but so did the opponents, and Harvard's failure to get going at any time in the contest was due almost entirely to its own mistakes rather than to any great improvement on the part of the enemy.

Unmistakable are the evidences of power in this Harvard machine. It is strong enough, at its best, to give any team a mighty stiff argument on the gridiron.

But, as yet, it has shown no signs of being able to apply full pressure for more than fifteen minutes and it has faces only weak teams.

How long will it be able to do so against the Army?

Upon the answer depends Harvard's chances.

If it has been holding back and is able to keep traveling on high for the full sixty minutes next Saturday, the game will be one which you

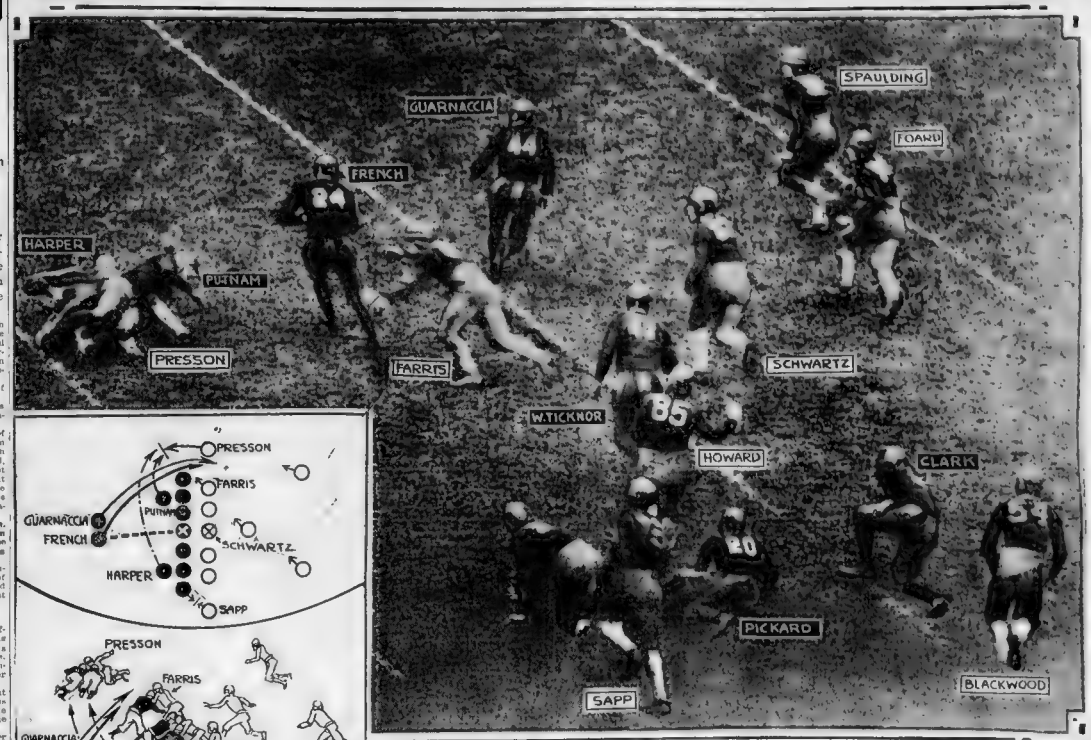
A FIFTY PER CENT PERFECT HARVARD PLAY AGAINST TAR HEELS



Capt. French went outside tackle for 10 yards on this particular play in the Harvard-North Carolina game in the Stadium Saturday. That's a pretty good gain, but it might have been much greater had the Crimson carried out its assignments a little better. Quarterback Putnam and Halfback Harper were supposed to take out the offensive end, Presson. They did, and how. But Pickard, the end, who was supposed to put Farris, defensive tackle, out, failed. Farris broke through and blocked the hole which French was supposed to go through behind Guarnaccia. This forced the Crimson captain to swing wide and gave Capt. Schwartz, Tar Heel center, time to get over and bring French down.

McNamara Scouting Has Helped Eagles

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Boston College might not be up with the undefeated football elevens of the East today if it had been involved in any non-scouting pacts with either the Navy or Duke.

For the victories over these two Southern rivals is due in great part to the keen espionage of Dinny McNamara.

McNamara scouted the Navy while their ship was sinking before Davis-Elkins. He came back to Boston College expounded the Navy plays to Joe McKenney and outlined the way to halt Davis-Elkins' star aerial expert. Russel Lloyd. Johnston and the other famed Mountaineer luminaries met a set term to work on Navy plays and after a week had the B. C. club ready for Annapolis the result of will is now history.

McNamara then saw Duke in action against South Dakota. It was hardly with their star back and receiver of forwards, Jankoski, on the sidelines. Yet Dinny saw enough to know that Duke was going to attempt a forward pass defense in like a setback.

He arrived in Boston on Monday from the Southland and on Tuesday McKenney was telling his boys just what Duke would offer in the way of an attack. Duke did as expected. Boston intercepted two Duke passes and turned them into touchdowns.

There might have been a difference in if these aerials had been completed and not interrupted by Crowden and Smith.

Scouting is an invaluable aid to a well-made football team such an intelligent informer. And that's what Boston College has. McNamara was said to be the best football player Boston College ever had who took Dinny to Fordham with him in his first year as head coach at the Bronx university.

He's a thorough student of the game and knows a good deal about the art of coaching, for it was Dinny who produced the undefeated Fordham freshman eleven last fall, although it must be admitted he had the material to work with.

B. C. has a real board of strategy. The four men are young and all understand the fall pastime thoroughly. If Boston College can keep the quartet of McKenney, Ormsby, M Mahmon and McNamara working together for a few years they won't be able to develop anything but a championship aggregation at Newton.

Coach McKenney himself went to New York over the week-end to get a glimpse of Fordham, the next feared opponent on the Boston College schedule. Joe didn't get hurt at all at the sight of the enemy facing it on the nose, for Joe and Cavanaugh, the Maroon mentor, are the greatest of friends and Joe wanted to see his team come through.

But he did learn a lot about his friendly enemy's system at Fordham, Cavanaugh's method hasn't changed much since Joe took lessons from him at the Heights, but there are a few new wrinkles that "I can still protect myself if necessary," laughed the Tiger.

"It isn't any secret that several New York managers tried to pull Smith out of the arc in the hope of getting one of their youthful sensations in with the former champion. They would agree to any terms Dempsey might ask, but in their heats they planned to try to have Dempsey knocked over.

"I am trying to get my new heavyweight into the Dempsey show," one prominent manager told me. "If I do, I'll send the kid out to knock Dempsey over. Latin School Has Fine Chance to Win Football Title

TEAM HAS PLENTY OF POWER

Holding Groton to No Score, With Several Players Out, Speaks Volumes for Team

By DICK McSWEENEY

The results of Saturday's football games didn't change the scholastic grid situation very much as most of the high school aggregations had played their contests on the holiday.

Salem and Brockton battled to a 7-7 tie on a muddy field. The Brockton eleven came from behind to score the touchdown and point after the passing net of from defeat. The wet field favored up both teams and the ball was hard to hold.

Boston Latin held the strong Groton outfit to a scoreless tie in another game played on a slippery, muddy, field. It was a moral victory for Latin as the Crimson was without the services of several of its best players. Coach Fitzgerald's boys have improved a lot since the St. Mark's and Gloucester contests and has a fine chance to win the city title.

Winthrop ran its margin of victories up another notch by defeating Weymouth in a close game. Haley, one of last year's stars, is still playing a smooth game at quarterback for the Ocean City eleven.

Woburn as expected, defeated the inexperienced Wakefield club but the Highlanders did well to hold their opponent to two touchdowns. It seems that Wakefield improves mightily in every contest and the players are gradually finding out what it's all about.

Lynn Tech recovered from its defeat at the hands of Winthrop a week ago and smothered Revere 27-0. Norman dashed through Revere on the right side of the line and the second, third and fourth teams found the going easy also.

Holy Cross freshmen were defeated by St. John's Prep in one of the cleanest games of the season, only two penalties were meted out and these were for offside play. The forward passing attack of the Purple practice proved a bonanza as the two passes were intercepted by St John's and turned into scores.

Newport Naval training school made it three straight by sending the B C team from down to defeat. Edwards was the big cog for the Naval school scoring two touchdowns. The Maroon and Gold was outweighed but not outgamed.

Frank L. Aleire, faculty manager of athletics at Somerville high school, has invited Joe McInerney, the Holden College coach, to attend the Somerville-Cambridge Latin game next Saturday. There is a possibility that some of the Maroon and Gold team will attend also, as the Eagles play no football on that date.

Coach Batchelder of Malden is playing many changes in the lineup of his football team due to the Blue and Gold's poor showing in the Melrose game. The Malden mentor realizes that he faces a stiff foe in Lynn Classical next Saturday and is taking no pains to impress this fact upon his charges.

John O'Brien, flashy Malden fullback, was injured in the Melrose game and will not be able to don his togs for the coming fray with Lynn Classical.

Art Manos of B. C. High blames most out-of-town as the cause of the Maroon and Gold's defeat at the hands of the Brookline team. Next Saturday the James at boys meet a worthy foe in the strong St. Peter's eleven of Worcester.

It seems very unlikely that Bill Adler, Latin school's captain, will get into any games this season. Adler's injured knee is still stiff, and Coach Fitzgerald does not want to take any chance of aggravating the arm injury by using the popular Latin end in coming contests.

Bruins Play First Game Here Nov. 20

The National League board of governors have cut 10 days off the hockey season, and the 1928-29 schedule of 44 games for each of the 10 clubs will be finished on March 16 this year and all Stanley cup play will be ended before April 1.

There will be no conflict hereafter between hockey and baseball.

The ice will be out of the big rinks of American and Canadian cities, when the major leaguers start to leave their training camps in the South.

The Boston season will start Nov. 20 and end March 12, but the Bruins will play two games before they open here and two games after they close their season here. Boston hockey fans hope for a week or more of Stanley Cup playing, too, after the regular season.

The Bruins will play 11 games at home on Tuesday night, including games Dec. 25 and Jan. 1. They will pay five Saturday night games on the dates Dec. 8, Jan. 5 and 12, Feb. 2 and March 9. Eight of the 23 away from home games will be played on Sunday nights.

All five games Boston plays in New York are booked for Sunday at the Madison Square Garden and all three Chicago games likewise at the Chicago Coliseum.

The schedule advises the Bruins to play four of their first five games on the road and eight of their last 18 games on the road, but in between there will be a fine opportunity to develop the team.

Following the strenuous opening road schedule, the Bruins play 11 home games, start-ing Nov. 27 and continuing to Jan. 15, against five away games, two with New York teams, two in Montreal and one in Toronto. It will be during that stretch that Art Ross hopes to have the Bruins establish themselves.

Art Ross will arrive here today. The players already are on their way east, and practice will start just as soon as there are enough players to make a gymnasium start and get hardened for ice work. Following Ross' arrival here, he is expected to announce three new players acquired by the Bruins to make a total squad of 17 players, providing Eddie Shore gets into line. Shore is still a holdout, but the Bruin players are certain he will be with them.

Schaaf Favored to Win Verdict From Tiger Payne

HAMBONE KELLY ON CARD

Charlie Donovan and Larry Brignolia in Semi-final Go.

Tiger Jack Payne, heavyweight champion of Australia, and most colorful boxer to appear on the horizon in many a weary moon, worked out at Toland's gymnasium in preparation for his 10-round bout with Ernie Schaaf, which is to feature the Arena A. C. show at the Arena tomorrow night.

The colored star is in superb physical condition, and is confident that he will put an abrupt halt to the campaign of Schaaf. He came here a few weeks ago, when Joe Monte was howling for a chance to meet Jim Maloney, and to the great delight of Dan Carroll and Jerry Gardner, Maloney's board of strategy whipped the Brockton bearcat.

For months, Schaaf has been chasing Maloney for a match, but James has been studiously avoiding the blonde Viking. There will be no gloom in the Maloney camp if the colored menace is to beat Schaaf, but the sailor is confident of victory and will renew his challenges to Maloney in the event that he whips the hard-hitting Payne.

SCHAAF FAVORITE

Schaaf will be favored, because he is the best young heavyweight prospect in the country. Just past his twentieth birthday, he is ready to start shooting for the top, ready for Maloney, ready for Paulino and Roberti and Risko.

He is already an experienced heavyweight, a combination boxer-puncher who is expected to travel further along the heavyweight highways than either Maloney or Sharkey has.

Both Schaaf and Payne will taper off in their training today, Schaaf at his own camp in Wrentham and Payne at Toland's gymnasium.

The bout which is to be staged at popular ringside from 50 cents to three dollars, will be witnessed by a near capacity house, according to present indications.

In the 10-round semifinal bout, Charlie Donovan of Dorchester, one of the gamest of all the welterweights, will meet Larry Brignolia, of Cambridge. Brignolia, who knocked out Young Granberg of Dorchester two weeks ago, looms up as the most dangerous threat to Al Mello, since Mello won the New England welterweight title.

HAMBONE RETURNS

In the six-rounders, Joe Hambone Kelley, mighty South Boston puncher, will throw his punches at a colored gentleman named Big Boy Burlap of Westerly, R. I. and Hy Dimond, brilliant young West End boxer, will meet Cap Coloma of the U. S. Navy, who staged such a thrilling fight with Henry at the Arena two weeks ago.

Heavyweights will be featured in the four rounders—Jack McGowan of Canada vs. Andy Sirios of Waterbury, a protege of Jack Britton; Big Boy Rawson of Dorchester and Joe Norman of the U. S. Navy, and Jack "Fish" Hardy, another South Boston puncher, vs. Ted Johnson of White River Junction, Vt.

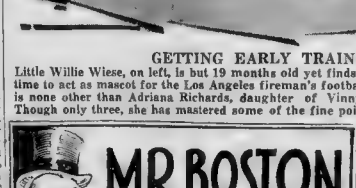
GETTING EARLY TRAINING

Little Willie Wiese, on left, is but 19 months old yet finds time between bottle and bedtime to act as mascot for the Los Angeles fireman's football team. The pretty little miss is none other than Adriana Richards, daughter of Vinny Richards of tennis fame. Though only three, she has mastered some of the fine points of the court game.



MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"THERE was a lady in to see me today who says she conducts some kind of a golf club out in Wayland," Myles McSweeney said to Mr. Boston as the veteran dropped in from out of the White Mountains today. "I think she declared you had played at her course, and I thought that the gang would be interested in knowing what it's all about."

"The ladies, God bless them," replied Mr. Boston, "are in golf, baseball, wrestling, boxing and what not."

"The lady who directs the club at Wayland is Mrs. Jeanette H. Russell," went on McSweeney.

"I have met her at the Wayland Golf Club," replied Mr. Boston. "She has a fine course. It is a nine-hole affair and one of the sportiest in New England.

"I dropped out there a couple of weeks ago and chased the little white ball around.

"Mrs. Russell takes personal charge of everything at her club. She sees that the course is kept in excellent condition. The layout is also a good one. There are some long holes, while there are others which require the skill of a Kirkwood and his bag of trick shots.

"THE ladies are in athletics to stay. They give more attention to details than the men folks which is probably why they have proved so successful.

"Mrs. Jim Dunn proved that a woman could direct a ball club. She took charge of the Cleveland club when her husband died.

"Mrs. George V. Tuohey often arranged the wrestling matches, when her late husband was ill or out-of-town.

"The ladies are enthusiastic sport fans. They attend every clean, wholesome form of athletics.

"The boxing game, in particular, has been elevated by the fact there are now thousands of lady fans who would not miss an important bout. Their presence at the ringside has toned down what was formerly known as the rougher element.

"Even the referees, judges and announcers now doll up so that they will look their best when friend wife or the girl friends drop around to one of the clubs to see them do their stuff.

CAPT. WILLIAMSON LOST TO SPRINGFIELD ELEVEN

Springfield, Oct. 15—Capt. Eddie Williamson, quarterback of Springfield College, suffered a dislocated shoulder in the Camelas game last Saturday and will not be able to play again this season. Williamson has been the outstanding player on the local eleven.

Hansen and McGuire in Tilt on Mat

Charlie Hansen, Swedish heavyweight, will make his first start of the season in Los feature bout at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night, meeting big Ned McGuire, the Irish giant, in the two-falls-out-of-three finish match of Paul Bowser's weekly show.

The Irishman was the shining light of last week's card. He beat Jack Warner of Omaha in the opening bout, and so decisively, that he was put into the main bout without a moment's hesitation. McGuire is now heading for a match with Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, and intends to challenge him next Thursday if he gets by the clever Hansen.

BASS' PLAYING GIVES TERRIERS NEW HOPES

B. U. more than fulfilled all expectations when it trampled over Vermont 25 to 0 at Burlington Saturday. The entire team played heads up football and all deserve words of credit. Al Bass, freshman halfback, who started his first college game, was far and away the shining light of the afternoon.

It was a 42-yard run by Bass that placed the ball on the Vermont three-yard line, from which point Bass himself carried it over the plays later for the first score of the game. He scored another in the final quarter to complete a very fine afternoon's work.

Solly Thurman, although he did not score, was not far behind his teammate in ground gaining ability and it was his steady and often brilliant stents off tackle that did up to score.

The Terrier two quarterbacks O'Brien and Marcoux competed in scoring for B. U. when they scored a touchdown apiece in the last quarter. Marcoux's 4-yard run for a touchdown after intercepting a Vermont pass was a brilliant bit of work.

The B. U. defense has given the coaches little to worry about to date but it was not until Saturday that the offense functioned properly, and with Nelson, Hostetsin and Perkins returning to action this week the Terriers will present a powerful attack for the visitors from Lewiston Saturday.

The drive in preparation for Bates will begin this afternoon and will continue in high speed for the rest of the week. B. U. has now found itself and has acquired confidence in its own ability and intends to keep moving.

Zaramby in Lynn Bout With Moore

Jake Zaramby, brilliant young Lynn featherweight, will receive the hardest test of his career tonight when he will meet the experienced and hard-hitting Johnny Moore of the North End in the 10-round feature bout of the Crescent A. C., in little Casino Hall, Lynn.

Moore has a terrific left hook, and Zaramby will carry his fighting into the ring with him tonight. Some weeks ago the Jewish youngster defeated Frankie Moore younger brother of Johnny, and Frankie will be in Johnny's corner tonight when the older brother attempts to even the family score.

In the 8-round semifinal bout Dwyer of South Boston will meet George LaRata of Brockton who in the six-rounders Eddie Russell of Peabody will be paired with Mickey Saunders of Revere, and Gene John of Salem with Gus Russo of Quincy.

FALL RIVER NOW LEADS SOCCER LEAGUE

By BILL McALLEY

Fall River jumped into first place in the American soccer league as a result of the week-end games, the Marksmen gaining two victories at the expense of New Bedford and Ware while the Nationals, former leaders, were idle due to the strike of most of its players.

While the first team was gaining top place the Marksmen seconds dropped into second place in the State league Abbot Worsted handing them their first defeat yesterday at Forge Village. Lusitania Recreation are now on top without a defeat.

The Woodsies lost their sixth game Saturday. The Whalers defeated them, 2 to 0. Again it was a case of the locals having the superiority through the brilliant playing of the defense, but losing out through the poor marksmanship of the front line. Time and again some one of the forwards blew away a chance to net the ball.

The new Eastern League opened Saturday with a full schedule of games and again yesterday their program was carried out. Bethlehem won two games from the Giants by the odd goal, one at Bethlehem and one at New York.

Three of the National players struck Friday, Renault, Claxton and Gallagher, played for the Giants yesterday against the Reds. An entire problem for those fighting the soccer war to solve.

It is safe to predict that the title will draw a stiff competition from the American League.

The soccer war as it has been dubbed is at it going strong but it wouldn't surprise us if a settlement was made in the courts that would be in trouble leading up to this before it has been brewing for a considerable time and for some of the owners it is best that it has come to a head.

Sonnenberg Stars on the Gridiron

Providence, Oct. 15—Rolling at the best clip of the season to the tune of a 13-0 drubbing a record 15,000 crowd saw the Providence Cyclodrome this afternoon.

"Wild Cat" Wilson and Gus Sonnenberg ran wild against the Westerners, this switched over to the backfield late in the game for the first time in his career and through the opposition for gains from two to 15 yards threw a forward which netted a touchdown, crashed right end for a point after touchdown, and kicked a placement for another point after touchdown.

Army Will Test Out Harvard's Power

will be telling your grandchildren about in years to come.

Let it down to the extent of the one against Springfield and the slaughter in the Stadium promises to be something terrible

There is hope for the Crimson because of the improvement showed Saturday over its work in the first game.

OFFENSE VARIED

Nearly every glaring fault which the opener brought to light had been corrected before the team took the field against North Carolina. The pass defense, which had been poor, was well nigh perfect, the weakness in the center of the line was almost entirely gone, due to a revamping of the forward wall; the offense which had been very limited, was quite varied.

That's a lot of improvement in the short space of a week.

If the team can continue to improve as fast in the few days which remain before the Army meeting, it ought to be able to correct its big second game faults.

And in that event it should have a good chance against the Cadets.

As we have said, the Crimson showed a much more varied attack against North Carolina than it did against Springfield, but there was nothing original or special about the offense. All the running and pass plays employed were patterned after those which seems to indicate that the team is going to rely for the most part on straight, old fashioned football this season.

The line last Saturday performed most meritoriously on the defense and showed that it had plenty of offensive class by opening wide holes for the backs to plunge through in that second-period session.

The forward wall will be put to an acid test this week-end with such backs as Cagle and Murrell to stop and such husky linemen as the Army boasts to sweep aside.

Still and all, there need not be a great deal of anxiety over how the Crimson line will stand the gaff. It promises to take care of itself very well even though it is still far from being finished and lets down at times.

The worrying should be over the backfield. It showed no promise against the Tar Heels in passing, nearly every task used dissipating with a fumble or both and only in punting in most approved fashion, but outside of that and its one surge, it didn't live up to expectations.

HARPER SHOWED WELL

Except for Wally Harper, who incidentally proved himself a mighty fine ball carrier, the backs weren't taking out the opposite ends as they should on the three Harvard sweep plays. Also, many of them employed a very sloppy method of carrying the ball and took almost prevented several fumbles.

And the quarterback was way off at times, both Gilligan and Putnam being at fault.

Putnam once called for a pass into the end zone on the first down with but five yards to go. The ball was rerunded and sent to North Carolina on the 20-yard mark.

Such a slip might well prove fatal in a big game. As it was, it point blank cost the team a touchdown.

Gilligan was used as a halfback as well as quarter. The former position seems the more suitable for him. He is the most elusive ball carrier on the squad and a lot of his ability is wasted when he is used as a field general.

Captain Tommy is mighty dangerous every time he hits the ball and with a few breaks he may be able to get the team through despite any weakness.

Harvard's lateral passing attack was one of the features of the game. It defied every attempt to break it up last season and on what few occasions it has been used to date this year.

The Army hasn't a very strong defense against an aerial game from all accounts, and the Crimson should gain a lot with its laterals against the Cadets.

A good line, a lateral pass and Gilligan are Harvard's big assets at present. These may be enough to overcome its weaknesses.

If a few of the outstanding faults are corrected, the combination of Gilligan and the lateral pass certainly should give the Crimson at least an even chance to coming through in its big game.

NO PACIFIST PICKED HARVARD GRID FOES

HARVARD, playing the Army Saturday, starts off on one of the most courageous schedules of them all. No pacifist arranged the array of gridiron skirmishes that confront the Horween team from this week-end until the frost on the pumpkin has frozen the blooming squash.

Nick Flatley

Harvard plays the Army, Dartmouth, Lehigh, Penn, Holy Cross and Yale in order, and if that isn't a full dish there's no such animal. Time was when the BIG football game came along in the last two weeks of the season. That time has gone. Each week-end, with the big teams, means real gridiron war.

That's as it should be. The case of Harvard this fall is perhaps the most interesting of all the colleges. Arnie Horween has had two years of preparation. His system has been established. He is ready with the best looking of his three teams to face the big test.

And he has a test to face. No doubt about that. If his athletes can get by the Army they may march on to uninterrupted glory. For the Army is about the toughest of them all. The Cadets are old gridiron soldiers. They take their West Point football after getting the usual collegiate experience.

They are a big, tough football team, generally able to overcome any opposition by sheer power and experience. Lined up they look and act like a lot of stone pillars. They have wrecked the spirit of many a good young team. There's always an air of inevitable force about any Army team.

Harvard is on the way back. But it has picked a tough obstacle for Saturday. If it surmounts this one the days of glory may be said to have returned. The Crimson has tradition to help along. No Cambridge team has been beaten by West Point. And great Army outfits have gone down before fair gangs of red jerseys.

Tradition and psychology enter more into football than into any other sport. Hence its remarkable popular appeal. Harvard deserves its meed of praise for the present schedule, whatever laurels may be snatched as the sturdy squad works it out.

For Dear knight is more than words can speak,
He wears a shield of
And when the Horse pursue their He's with the Army man.

FRANK HOGAN AND ANDY COHEN HAVE A VALUABLE ACT, TOO BAD SOME OF THE CARDS DIDN'T HAVE ALL THAT FOUR-ACE.

BASEBALL BELIEVES HORNSBY WILL MAKE CUBS

IT is quite generally conceded throughout the baseball world that Rogers Hornsby will leave the Braves this winter and join the Chicago Cubs. It is also the general opinion that the addition of the Hornsby punch will make the Wrigley team a sure pennant winner in the National scramble.

Mister Hornsby himself has not a thing to say about this. He has not been approached by anybody from the Cubs. Judge Fuchs of the Braves declares that no Chicago offer has come his way. Nevertheless, this deal will soon be on the fire.

Hornsby gets an enormous salary—$40,000 per. He was not a success at managing the poor Braves. He is the type that is best on a fighting, winning ball club. He has little patience with inconsistence.

The Braves, with their new stands and loss of football, took a terrible financial socking this year. Any reasonable chance to recoup will be welcomed. The Cubs have been rolling money for several years. Owner Wrigley, who doesn't need it, wants a pennant. He will pay anything to make his contending club a winner.

Hornsby would seem to fill the bill perfectly for Chicago. He has the punch that the team lacked. He would have carried it through in the late lamented campaign. Wrigley is ready to give money and players —plenty of both—for success. He has what the Braves need. So draw your own conclusions.

SUNDAY BASEBALL HAS A GREAT CHANCE THIS YEAR. FIFTY THOUSAND PETITIONERS CAN'T BE WRONG.

If Al Smith announced that he had been crippled and doubted if he could run, the election would be a walk.

DEMPSEY CAN'T HELP BEING GOOD ACTOR

JACK DEMPSEY, most magnetic of all sport heroes, with the exception of Babe Ruth, comes to town today as an actor. Jack, we might tell you, is a pretty good actor. We saw the show in New York, and it has its points. It does give the audience an idea of just what this Dempsey person is.

Some smart college professor might take hold of Jack and talk him right into a few unneeded millions.

This Day in History

VIRGIL, the Latin poet, was born on October 15, 70 B. C., on a farm on the banks of the Mincio, not far from the town of Mantua. He is best known for his "Aenid" and hardly less well known for his "Georgics and Eclogues."

Will Any Man Love a Girl Who Has a Past She Tries to Hide?

CHAPTER 24.

"A LETTER—about me?" She couldn't meet his eyes. Fear weighed them down. Fear of what the letter could say. Panicky, fluttering fear . . . the shame of having h.m know . . . But he couldn't know, nobody knew, nobody but Bill and Aunt Ev.ie. Aunt Evvie knew, she guessed . . . and if Aunt Evvie guessed why not someone else? Or someone passing on the road in the night, hearing their voices, seeing them in the moonlight, the clear, silvery light . . . bright as day . . . someone might have watched . . . looked through the gaps in the hedge . . . they never thought of anything . . . that might have happened. . . .

The frightened thoughts scuttled lightning fast, through her brain. The scarlet of shame flowed over her face, suffusing it, right up to the roots of her hair.

Why Joan! You mustn't care! You don't think for a moment that I'd believe the stuff?"

She made a little clicking sound in her throat, but her voice wouldn't come. There wasn't any breath.

"Johnnie, if I had known you'd care I wouldn't have told you. I thought you'd think it was funny. It was, truly it was . . . Let me tell you, dear. Please. Something about stealing someone's lover, and running away with a sailor from Coney Island——"

"What!" She raised her shamed head, stared at him incredulously. A sailor? Why, Curtis—I——"

"Didn't I tell you it was crazy? Yes, a sailor from Coney Island——"

"A sailor," she echoed. Oh the blessed relief of it. Not being found out. Safe. "A sailor!"

She stopped again, catching her breath. Lying. That was what she was doing. Lying. Making him think . . . what wasn't true.

"Would you have cared . . . if it were true?" she asked very low, so low that he could hardly hear the question.

"Johnnie!" He strained her to him smoothing her hair, soothing her. "You mustn't have morbid thoughts like that. I want you to be always sunny and laughing, always my merry Joan——"

"You didn't answer me, Curtis."

"Didn't answer you?"

"When I asked—if it would make any difference if . . . if . . ."

"Johnnie, don't be absurd. For heaven's sake——"

"I know, but would it, Curtis . . . tell me . . . would it matter if——"

"If you had run away with the sailor? Of course, it would. You'd be the sailor's bride I suppose, and I'd be out of luck. Besides, you wouldn't be Joan, you'd be someone else. That's why it's so crazy to argue."

"But if I had?"

"Oh, Johnnie, you don't get the point. It was your goodness that made me love you. The goodness that is your beauty. Not the white and gold of your flesh, though I love that too, but because you're yourself—different from other girls . . . better. . . .

She stiffened in his arms. Turned cold and sick . . . so sick . . . nauseated . . .

"No, not different. Not better—" She'd have to tell him now. All the stale, sordid story that once seemed so beautiful and clean. Like a rainbow flashing suddenly in the gray days of her loneliness in the big house on the hill. A rainbow that wasn't real at all, only a flash of cheap, colored light.

"Curtis——" She couldn't keep her voice steady, because her teeth were chattering, chattering with fear. She knew how his face would look when she made him understand at last. Made him see her as she really was. "How can I bear it? How can I bear it when he knows."

She lay on his shoulder, listening, trembling trembling sickly. Curtis Curtis' degree when he knew. She hadn't been thinking of that. Only her own. She could bear it for herself, but for him . . . breaking his faith, spoiling his life . . .

"Oh if I had known, if I had known what it would be like . . . to have to go on living, remembering . . . Aunt Evvie why didn't you tell me . . . why didn't someone tell me? It wasn't fair— I didn't know——" Sick thoughts whirling, whirling in circles. Circles of pain.

No way out now . . . unless she broke Curtis' heart. . . .

"You shouldn't love me like that, Curtis . . . because I'm not worth it really . . . truly . . . I'm not. . . .

He only smiled, and kissed her fingers gently. One by one.

"That settles it," Maisie said when Joan pushed her oatmeal away untouched the next morning. "You've got to give up your work and get some rest in the mornings. When a girl can't eat——"

"I'm just not hungry—"

"Well, you eat something. I'm not going to have you go out of here without anythin' in your stummick. You ought to look at yourself in the mirror. Dark circles under your eyes, pale as a ghost, hand shakin' as you can't hold your coffee cup. Now you keep on lookin' that way and Curtis'll be findin' himself another girl——"

"I wish he would!" the words came out of their own accord, explosively.

Maisie's spoon clattered into the cup, splashing the sweet brown juice up over her starched clean housedress.

Joan looked down at the ring basking on her finger. Symbol of her pledge to Curtis. Symbol of Curt's promises to her. Promises of ease and wealth, of beauty and the soft things of life. Slowly she took it off. Placed it carefully on the table beside her.

"Maisie, I can't go on with it. I've tried. I—I can't do it. I can't——"

Maisie slapped down the last saucer. "You didn't go into this hurriedly," she said slowly. "You had plenty of time to think it over. You knew he was going to ask you long before he did. An' if you were going to pull out the time to do it was when the first news got into the papers. You could have denied it then. But you told him it was all right. You held out your hands to him and told him you were glad.

"I saw it with my own eyes, Joan. You did it right in front of me. An' now when you've got your engagement ring, and Mis' Barstow has pretty near broke her neck bein' nice to you, you talk like that. I don't understand you." She poured the water out of the cup and hung it on the hook over the sink, still with her eyes turned away.

Joan went on drying the blue cup in her hands. It was all true, everything that Maisie said. Everything.

Maisie glanced at the clock on the shelf. "It's a quarter to 9. You'll be late," she said.

"Yes, I must hurry."

After a while Joan walked over to the table, and put the ring on her finger. "All right—I got into it. I'll live it through."

Even then Maisie didn't answer.

Joan went to work with a stone in her side, where her heart had been.

Eugenia Laird gave a bridge party for Joan. Joan and she hovered around the table at which Joan was playing. She was always hovering around Joan now. "And this is Joan Hastings," she'd gush, introducing her to some one she hadn't met. "You know Curtis is really my big brother, so that makes Johnnie a sort of sister-in-law, or something, doesn't it?" Poor Eugenia who had expected to marry Curtis.

"How cried Joan all in." Joan thought. "She's in love with Curtis and that nice Darrow boy is in love with her I suppose she won't take him seriously because he's so short and fat. And Curtis is in love with me, and I'm in love with—"

Back to Work

GLOOM says, "Winter, with furs and rouge for your nose; with nippers for your toes and finger-tips; with dark skies and slushy streets; north-wind and leaden, bare branches lashing a cold, rattling tune to the belated commuter; with lots of cosy indoor life; winter—with all of these—and WORK. Back to work goes you!"

And he points to a fellow's drawing-boards, and then to a fellow's head piece and bids a fellow begin. But a fellow's sconce is all a-gog with the lovely days that were so lately and are no more—vacation days—drugged with unaccustomed idleness, all a-twitter with sun and wind and open sky effects, drenched with sunshine (artists get very little), gone effervescent with play, and so—there no ideas in it and the good fellow, when one tries to work it. Creaks; but only when it has to pull. How sweetly it runs while idling.

JOY says, "Oh, ye-ees. Winter and Work! I know. Vacations are all over for the active world. But LOOK BACK. You'll have time to do that once in a while. And wasn't it a roseate and carefree month? Glittering, sunny days. The car swooping like a swallow up and down the ballroom floor roads as they unreeled through the mountain country. Jumping wild Arean rollers with their white manes flying, holding hands with your two boys, one a man—and your sweetheart, the other a baby—and your sweetheart, too. Never hurrying. Eating, sleeping, playing. Irresponsible. Rich in delightful hours. Rich in close companionship with the two you love" So says JOY.

Says he, "Those hours are never lost. They are a treasure to draw upon."

Says he, "Winter is not so bad, anyhow, WORK, when you wade in again and start swimming. It's a new thing, too. Christmas is coming—and Thanksgiving. They don't have them in summer-time. And first thing you know it will be time to put the boat overboard again and start uncovering the hiding place of your bathing suit."

'Tiger Love'; A Thrilling Chapter In Amazing Serial

chosen for his eagle's flight. No! In those olden days he had sworn his most sacred vow that his children should be trained for the gentler arts of peace. They must not suffer as he had suffered.

Meredith lighted his last cigarette—many had he consumed during this dreadful night of heart ache! He laughed at the old shattered hopes, the old ideals. Even within his heart, he was not unhappy that those ancient, silken ideals had been torn to shreds.

With all the misery which had suddenly descended upon him since last setting of the sun, there was a strange fierce exultance in his spirit! He could not explain it. Did not, perhaps, what surprised him the most.

For, instead of the girl of his dreams—softly bred, refined and delicate of soul and thoughts, he had suddenly fallen over the great whirlpool of emotional love, to find his heart aching for the touch of a coolie dancing girl's hand!

He longed to gaze again at the alluring black, untutored face, which had driven herself to a frenzy in a heathen orgy of idol worship a hundred miles from the nearest white civilization!

He yearned for the kiss which he had never tasted from those delicately sensuous lips, for the caress of which he had not earlier dreamed. He held again in his strong arms that nearly naked body which he had borne stolidly from the field of savage ceremonies to the house and bed of a savage old high priest of an alien creed.

As he paced back and forth, the natives of the village, new-risen to the various tasks of their simple day, walked past him reverentially. No longer were they thrilled with the hysteria of the night before . . . merely laggard and drowsy, worn with the emotional excesses, the terror and the reaction of their rejoice by the great white hunter.

More than one of them started to speak to him. But the stern, unseeing gaze which he turned upon them as they approached frightened them, they knew not why.

At last, faithful Punjari, undisturbed by thoughts of any maidens, came down the street from a native hut where he had found the solace of a few hours' slumber.

"Your breakfast is being prepared, Sahib, and under my especial direction," he said, with pride. "Eggs and pheasant and fish—fresh caught. It will be splendid," he said.

Meredith shook his head.

"Get the men to roll up that tiger skin, Punjari, and engage a couple of them to carry it back to Abadipur with us. I'm starting back to my job. There's a lot of work to do and I've a lot of things I want to forget."

The little man stared in amazement. In the instant he realized that this tall hunter had changed somehow, over night, from the carefree, laughing, devil-may-care young American whom he had learned to love during his brief service.

"Yes, Sahib. It will be done," he answered simply. "Immediately he sought out old Mahji, to secure the necessary bearers. Within a half hour all arrangements had been made and the party was ready to start on the long jaunt back to the city of the Rajah. The natives chosen were jubilant for the task, to them had come their greatest adventure, for none of them had ever ventured beyond the distant horizon.

The thoughtful little Hindu had persuaded Meredith to eat a few mouthfuls of breakfast, declaring that jungle fever menaced a man who marched on an empty stomach.

Just as they were about to start the venerable holy man hurried down to them. Meredith had already made him a parting gift of money which made the old man's eyes protrude like those of a big pekinese. He wondered what more was desired.

Mahji called Punjari aside, with a tremble in his voice. He whispered long into the little man's ears and then gazed long and fervently at Meredith.

"Sahib, here is something very peculiar," said Punjari advanced to the impatient Meredith.

The engineer glared at him with nervous tension. He advanced a step.

"Well, let us have it, my boy," he said, holding his nerves in check.

Old Mahji extended his withered hand. As he opened the clenched fingers Meredith beheld a crumpled piece of paper. He took it from the bhikpriest's hand and opened it, curiously.

Scrawled upon it, and barely legible, were three words. They had apparently been written with some native chalk or other crude writing material. Paper is not often seen in the jungle villages, and Meredith looked sharply at the old man.

"Where did this come from?" he demanded in Hindustani.

"It was torn from one of the holy books of the white sahibs which one of your guests with the black clothes left here six months ago. But the piece was found in the room where the young dancer was brought by you last night. One of my young women found it near the bed. I believed it would interest you, great Sahib. I believe the dancer left it."

Meredith looked at the three words again and then spoke sharply to Mahji.

"Send a native runner along each of the roads which the old man and woman, with the girl, could have taken," he said. "And when they have traced the three, send word to me at Abadipur, so that I may know how to trace them again. I will pay the bhikpriest a hand and opened, the man well who brings the news to me."

He turned on his heel.

"Come along, Punjari, and there was a weird smile on his face. "I'd shake hands with the next tiger I meet instead of shooting him. For the tiger is the fiercest beast in the world, they say, and I know how very gentle and when they're in love. That's just the way I feel."

They had journeyed for an hour on the return march to the city before the little man ventured to ask the question which burned his tongue.

"It's just a little message, but I know that girl has not forgotten some things and is now remember ing others she never knew. If she's not a white girl, I'll take a chance, anyway, Panjari. This is what she wrote. Read it . . . maybe she learned it from a missionary school. But at any rate it's a heavenly message to me."

And Punjari read:

Those three words were: "I love you."

ACKNOWLEDGING GIFTS

DEAR MISS. BEECUMAN:

I have been engaged for over a month, and had my reception. I have been the recipient of many beautiful presents, but I am in doubt as to the form of acknowledgement: I should write. Do I include the name of my fiance in the body of the note and do I just sign my name?

PUZZLED

THE thank-you notes that you write for your betrothal presents are of the same type that you write for any other kind of present, that is, a thank you for the thoughtfulness of the friends who sent it, and a hint that you appreciate it. If you not to use the kind of card that you sent me for it is thoroughly in order. Engraved and in extremely bad taste. Buy some white or ovster gray letter paper of the conventional double sheet kind, and of the best texture that you can afford. These are very important notes and do serve an important-looking back ground. There should be no ridiculous crowding of the writing, as you had to do in your note to me.

Since the notes are for betrothal presents, and since these presents are personal into the wedding procession, which are for the new home you do not write for your fiance, too.

FRANCIS HOOLEY

Mass. Boy Was Nearly Ruined

Thousands of children are robbed of their birthright of health and happiness by awful constipation. Waste matter held too long in their bowels forms poisons which pollute their blood, cause headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, indigestion, biliousness, make them weak, sallow, fretful and underweight.

Don't let your child suffer from constipation until his stomach and bowels are weakened. At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness, stop his trouble quick with California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich fruity taste. It cleans them out thoroughly, regulates stomach and bowels and gives their organs just the strength so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Thousands of Massachusetts mothers are eager to tell of their experience with it. Mrs. Grace Hooley, 15 Whittier St., Boston, says: "My little son, Francis, was nearly ruined by weak bowels before I began giving him California Fig Syrup. He was sallow, listless, headachy all the time. Now he's strong and well and full of life. Since this experience I've kept California Fig Syrup in the house all the time for colds and any upset spells."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. See that the carton you get bears the word "California."

About Sinus Disease

By Dr. BRICE BELDEN

YOU may be the victim, or have friends that are victims of sinus disease. By this I mean infection, that is to say, an inflammation of one or more of the air-filled spaces that surround the eyes and nose. This is not a simple condition affecting the patient only, but a problem that must be considered and dealt with by recognizing and managing the whole family as a clinical unit.

The disease is characterized at the beginning by all the signs that we associate with a "cold," but in addition there is a heavy yellowish or greenish yellow discharge from the nose or dropping from the nose into the throat. This material is the paramount and unmistakable sign that the condition is more serious that any cold. When it begins to change in color from a or grayish white, then the germs are beginning to lose their battle, but this does not mean that the patient is cured; on the contrary this may be the point at which an acute infection passes into an obstinate chronic one.

When a child has a chronic sinus infection its nose is often stuffy and stopped up, and the slightest draught or chill will bring on a "cold." The child nearly always breathes through its mouth and the removal of tonsils and adenoids does not cure the habit or improve the health. The child's nose is constantly or recurrently wet or sticky or crusty and liable to be sore. The child sniffs, clears its throat, sneezes more than usual, snores at night, often suffers from earache and hoarseness and sometimes has gatnis in the neck.

This unpleasant condition is contracted through direct or indirect contact with someone else who has the disease in an acute state. When the disease is in the quiescent an at tack may be brought on by chilling overexertion or breathing in a lot of dust or germ-laden air.

If one parent has a chronic sinus infection, only the greatest good luck will save the children and the other parent from developing the disease in some degree. In the same way children will contract it from brothers and sisters, unless all direct face and hand contact is rigorously excluded. The parent who insists on kissing children on the mouth and feeding them with his or her own fork or spoon or off the same plate is a bosom enemy. Sharing handkerchiefs is another most dangerous practice. The bathroom wash basin may convey sinus infection to a whole family. The shaving materials of father, the common drinking glass and careless mixing of towels are all part of the problem.

Nor must the maids be forgotten. A cook with sinus disease might be tolerable if she always washed her hands after using her handkerchief or before handling food. How many homes are without community mouth-organs, whistles and horns?

Household Hints

Cut flowers live much longer if a pinch of salt is added to their water, which should be changed every morning. The stems should be clipped daily.

• • •

For a stained marble washstand it is an excellent thing to rub it with lemon juice and salt.

Tissue paper cleans windows better than a cloth. Have one piece for damping and another for polishing. It brightens jewelry also.

A tablespoon of sugar added to the water used for beating a joint will improve the flavor as well as add to the rich brown color of the gravy.

• • •

To keep tiled floors looking new wipe them over twice a week with skimmed milk and once in two months polish with linseed oil—and a soft cloth.

An excellent home-made mixture for cleaning marble may be made by mixing equal parts of soft soap and whiting with water; stir till creamy, and then add ½ gill of ammonia.

Two Chic Costumes

At left, "Facilite" is fashioned of one of the new black silk broches, with a small dot in bright silk on a dull foundation. The bodice is fitted and all the skirt is pleated finely. At right, "Miss au Point" is an afternoon gown in black crêpe de Chine, with the elaborate skirt which Premet is featuring this season.

Let the Child Begin to Choose Its Own Friends

By Constance Cameron

Back in the days of velvet jackets and panties, and stiff white ruffled collars, a tiny boy sedrried onto the porch of his big white home, turned and looked daintily back at the wistful-eyed child who slowly followed him up the driveway.

"What is the matter?" inquired the mother of the bereaffled who stepped up eagerly down the graveled lane. "Leo looks as though he wanted to play with you. Why don't you go and get your new ball and have a game on the grass?"

Her son favored her with a pained stare of amazement. "I won't play with Leo—he mispronced Cow. He's only the go down a little boy."

The mother was speechless with amusement for a second, then put ting her arms around her son she asserted: "But it not up to the way to pay it. Run! Let's see is if the gardener isn't around and I'll get your ball." She disappeared indoors.

"But his father works for us—" continued the tiny boy, when his mother returned.

"Of course," said the mother "And think how awful these grounds would look if he didn't. There would be weeds everywhere, and no lovely red and yellow flowers for you and I to pick and put on daddy's desk for him. I think you'd better tell him that we both thank him for keeping the yard so beautiful the next time you see him. Now ask Leo to play catch with you."

The incipient little "snob" loitered uncertainly down the broad white steps, his sunny brain pierced by a new sense of values. Subconsciously at some time, it had been instilled by someone (not his mother, surely) that he was a rich little boy, and therefore a bit better than other boys. His mother's valuation of the gardener's ONLY little boy gave a new light on things.

Realizing the child's aptitude for discriminating himself as a being on a higher level than his companions, the mother deftly turned it at every chance to an appreciation of character in others whenever he found it, until when he grew to manhood, he earned the title of "a regular fellow" from not only those of his own social class, but of the poor who worked with him and for him.

I suppose every mother desires that her child shall associate with the best—what she considers the best—in the line of companions and it is indeed a temptation to pick out the children who, in her mature judgment, are better fitted to associate with her small idol. However, the day will come when the child is grown up ready to go forth into the commercial and social world and mother will not be there to say "No" or "Do not" become fast friends with my son." He must choose for himself, and how CAN he choose wisely without any practice, without having acquired judgment of human behavior?

Let your child play freely with his school companions, preferably inviting them to your home and grounds where you can keep an eye on their activities. If there is a child among them whose influence you consider bad, ask your child what he thinks about it. Let him be the judge. Explain that you want him to be with only the best boys and girls, and let HIM decide who is worst and the offending child will soon be left out and invited at the next playtime. Let the CHILD learn to sort out the characteristics which will prove constructive to him and whom HE can help. And while [illegible] keep person from [illegible] grounds of being rude or quarrelsome, or unclean, step a minute and discover whether or not there isn't something YOU can do to help him overcome the fault which will bar him from society later.

Your mother-love surely embraces to some degree all small people, and out of this store of compassion for the other woman's child you can surely draw forth some idea of how to help him to a finer, [illegible] people of refinement and cultured way to your child, when he decides that Johnny or Jimmie is entirely out of the pale of his social circle is not far from coming to [illegible] head, let us invite him often and by being kind, and offering loving suggestions to him perhaps we can help him to acquire a standard of actions which will make [illegible] you and [illegible]

But above all let the child get used to choosing his friends, that he may choose unerringly when you are no longer at his side to guide him. And above all try to cultivate and appreciate honesty good-sportsmanship and a good mental equipment whenever he finds them no matter whether they appear in boys or girls of his own circle, or whether they appear in the gardener's son [illegible] important to anyone except themselves.

Montesquieu's "Spirit of Laws," annotated by Voltaire, or his marked volumes of the classics?

Forty-five million human beings work for pay in this country and earn about $47,000,000,000, a little more than $1000 each on the average.

Forty-eight thousand families are covered by group insurance in American industries. Each worker is protected with $1500 insurance, or about 50 per cent more than a year's earnings.

The importance and value of insurance are not sufficiently appreciated. In human undertakings, the great words are "SAFETY, CERTAINTY, SECURITY."

Insurance makes certainty possible, eliminates the factor of danger, and final failure. Be insured, be safe, and work better, because you feel better.

Some of the shrewd men in Wall street will meet in Atlantic City this week for the annual convention of the Investment Bankers' Association of America.

They will talk conservatively about investments and deplore "over speculation," as be men gentlemen that have almost enough already.

But they know that many American securities are selling far below their value.

Mr Jerome J Hanauer of Kuhn Loeb and Company for instance, will be there, and he won't tell you if he would buy to invest $50,000 safely, in a stock under his care, and change your $50,000 into $75,000. But he won't tell you. Wise Wall street men don't give advice or take it.

Lord Melchett, formerly Sir Alfred Mond, one of the richest and most useful men in Great Britain, gigantically rich, laboring to establish co-operation between capital and labor, starts intelligently by making capital do something more practical than mere preaching.

Lord Melchett says British labor desires no revolt or revolution which is true.

The British learned one lesson watching the French revolution, watching the heads dropping, and in another lesson watching the Russian revolution. The upper class, including royalty, learned an important lesson from Oliver Cromwell.

That gentleman, who never lost a battle, whose mere name struck terror for years after his death, created wholesome respect for the peoples power.

Fashion Fads

Fabric feds and foibles still prevail, but the fabric handling outdoes them all. Tweed, flannel and broadcloth are made up in the regulation styles. Some, however, omits as larger bays of the grandmother variety, and these come in silk, crêpes and chints

AUCTION BRIDGE
by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

PRE-EMPTIVE BIDS

A PRE-EMPTIVE bid is any bid of a greater number of tricks than necessary either to bid originally or to overcall a previous bid and its object is to shut out, if possible, adverse bids which might result in the uncovering by the opponents of a game going bid for their side.

Properly employed, a pre-emptive bid should indicate the probability of game with but average support from partner; or, lacking such support, the possibility of a reasonable loss that would be amply compensated by saving the game that the opponents could probably make were they not shut out from the bidding.

Inasmuch as the primary object of a pre-emptive bid is to shut out adverse bidding, it follows that if an opponent has already bid, a pre-emptive bid can be of little or no value.

Pre-emptive original bids should be confined to suit bids. Original pre-emptive No Trump bids are seldom indulged in by advanced players, and never to advertise lone Aces.

A pre-emptive bid should be made only with an abnormal hand having great length and strength in a single suit; and to accomplish its purpose must necessarily be a bid of at least three in a Major or of four in a Minor suit.

Furthermore, the hand must be of such a character that the pre-emptive bid offers the best chance for game regardless of partner's holding in the suit. Therefore, the least length and strength of the suit that will answer the requirement is two cards headed by Ace-King, Ace-Queen-Jack or King-Queen-Jack.

Granted that the long suit contains the required top strength and that the hand is of such character as to warrant a pre-emptive bid rather than an initial bid of one, three should be bid pre-emptive with a seven-card Major suit, four with an eight-card Major or Minor suit, and five with a nine-card Minor suit.

The tactics explained in today's article are involved in the play of the following hand.

	♠ — ♥ Q9754 ♦ A43 ♣ 98642
♠ A7 ♥ — ♦ K1862 ♣ KQ10753		♠ 943 ♥ J1032 ♦ Q1095 ♣ AJ
	♠ KQJ108652 ♥ AK63 ♦ 7 ♣ —

ONCE-OVERS

YOU are tempted to envy the people you see riding around in beautiful, large cars and who bear other evidences of prosperity, but before you do, study their faces.

You will be surprised at the few happy faces you see.

The few who indicate any real pleasure is in life.

The many who look and get bored.

To them there is nothing unusual in the luxuries they possess.

Able to gratify most of their whims, they have little to anticipate.

One day means little to another.

They don't have to save and plan and they miss the joy of looking forward to something they want to possess and must work to get.

Your sphere may be a small one your circle limited, as to needs your ability to afford pleasure is not but you really gain much the things pleasure.

If you had more you might not be nearer so happy.

And isn't happiness a priceless possession?

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND.

WHEN a pair of perfectly good talkers and poor listeners decide to get married, the nearest divorce lawyer can afford to order his wife a new sport car.

This modernistic furniture would be all right, if you only knew which pieces to sit on and which to put on the mantelpiece.

Why does any man think that a woman who doesn't love him before marriage can "learn to love him" afterward merely by hanging up his clothes, counting his laundry, sewing the buttons on his plus-fours and listening to his early morning song in the shower? But, shush! The funny thing is that she sometimes does.

• • •

The modern girl spends less time getting the tangle out of her hair than her mother did—but the tangles she has to straighten out of her life, after a few wild, free years, are far more painful and irksome.

• • •

Funny! You see hundreds of statues to famous, prominent and successful men in Washington, but not one of the originals, as far as we can ascertain, ever owned a red sport car or prided himself on his technique in a rumble seat.

Apparently, it is just as safe to pick out a husband by counting the buttons on his coat, "Eenie-meenie-mine-mo," as by all the eugenic tests—just as safe to blindfold yourself and choose with your heart as to keep your eyes wide open and choose with your judgment.

• • •

A good friend is like a good tooth, impossible to replace—but once a friend and a tooth go bad and start hurting you, the wisest thing to do is to "have 'em out!"

• • •

Many a woman is happy and does not know it because the man she thought that she could never live without married the other girl.

• • •

Better marry and be a poor man's chum than stay single and be a rich man's office fixture.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

LITTLE JOURNEYS

By TEMPLE MANNING.

THE Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, as Russia is now known, owns the whole of the 4,860,000 square miles of country known as Siberia. Just what the name "Siberia" means is not quite clear. Some authorities believe that it is derived from the Russian word "Syever," meaning North, while others contend that it was "a designation of the chief settlement of the Tartar, Khan Kuchum, a sultan who reigned during the Sixteenth Century."

With an estimated population of 11,000,000, Siberia covers the whole northern part of the continent of Asia. Its people are either Russian exiles, or their descendants, and native tribes, Mongolian in origin. However, there is a splendid culture in the country, the schools and libraries being, for the most part, maintained by the State.

The caste system is a distinct thing in Siberia, the people in the cities being the aristocracy, those in the villages, the peasantry. This is partly explained by the fact that there are great distances between the villages and the towns, and the fact that there is little adequate means of transportation, few railway lines operating in the country. However, there is no distinct barrier between the peasant and the merchant that it is doubtful if even a means of communication would bridge the gap.

As the villages are virtually little Soviets in themselves, and are walled in effectually, there is an isolation and a drabness about the life therein that is unsurpassed anywhere else on earth. Life in the cities, on the other hand, is as gay as in any European city. In a later issue I will give you an example of the Siberian city, which may explain the foregoing remark.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THIS is the only self I know,
A self erect and young and proud
That, dauntless, through the years will go
With faith unshaken, head unbowed.

This is the only self I own,
Though other selves may mock and plead,
It is the better self, alone,
Whose dreams I build, whose hopes I feed.

Untouched by folly, fear or sin,
Unstirred by any winds of strife
This is the self that rules within
My inmost citadel of life.

MAIL SYSTEM IS IMPORTANT TO BUSINESS

Leaders in the world of business and finance with whom I have talked lately approve choice of the Brewer Building on State st., near Atlantic ave., as the site of the temporary Boston postoffice, while the new edifice on the site of the present postoffice is being reared. New England Telephone, as owner of the Brewer Building, gains by securing a first-class tenant, for you can't say Uncle Sam is anything else!

Among numerous Boston investment bankers attending the annual session of the Investment Bankers Association of America, now in session at Atlantic City, is a local man who headed the organization in 1926-1927. He is Pliny Jewell, a former newspaper publisher. Mr. Jewell was elected at a session held in the famous Chateau Frontenac, seen by all who visit Quebec.

Mr. Jewell pays tribute to the persistency of the modern bond salesman as having played an important part in post-war economic reconstruction. He points out that "the United States has been fortunate in having by far the major portion of the world's capital requirements year after year, and it could not be placed on the present scale without the highly organized sales force" of the organization now meeting in Detroit.

Rumor paints Edward Wentworth Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, as planning to head Toronto's new Royal Bank of Canada, which has bought the whole capital stock of six air transportation companies. The deal is said to have involved around $30,000,000. No public offering of stock is likely.

MYSTERY GIRL TO FETE 24 WHO MISSED $100

The amateur detective sense of Bostonians is not to be seen.

For one entire week 'the mysterious lady from The Silent House" roamed the streets of the Hub, shopped and asked various persons pointed questions.

To the person who identified her was to accrue $100 in cash as well as a pair of tickets to "The Silent House," the Chinese mystery play at the Majestic Theater.

Yet not once did she appear to be even in danger of identification.

Because no person was lucky enough to win the $100, General Manager Fuller of the Lee Shubert interests announces that the money will be donated to the Christmas Fund of the Boston Evening American for the needy and deserving.

However, the 24 persons to whom the mysterious lady talked will be her guests tomorrow night at the Majestic Theater. All they must do is to go to the Majestic Theater and she will be in the lobby to identify them. You can't miss her this time. Just ask for "the mysterious lady."

WILL BE HER GUESTS

Here are the 24 that will be the pretty girl's guests:

Dark, pretty saleslady in Filene's of whom she tried to buy Mystikum perfume on Monday.

Assistant treasurer of Union Savings Bank who was queried Monday on opening savings accounts with endorsers.

Traffic Officer T-19 stationed at Park and Beacon sts., told him she understood he was to be married.

Credit man at Meyer Jonasson's whose car, on Monday, she filled with chatter relative to her charge account in San Francisco.

Man in gray suit in Ludlam's bird store, asked Monday if cats-dogs would be friendly with cats.

Ritz-Carlton waiter asked on Tuesday if chop suey could be served.

Man in brown suit in Tremont st. Cook's Tour office who listened patiently to the story of an aunt interested in the Orient.

BOUGHT LINGERIE

Saleslady in R. H. White Co. lingerie department from which she purchased "some of those things" in blue georgettes and said she was shopping for a bashful husband who couldn't buy his wife's birthday present.

Pretty, dark-haired girl in main reading room of Public Library who was asked Wednesday for Chinese mystery story.

Dark lady in blue smock at Foll Parrot Beauty Shop, of whom a Chinese wig was unsuccessfully sought.

Young man in gray suit at Shreve, Crump & Low's who was queried regarding wedding rings.

Gray-haired lady in Bromfield st. Fanny Farmer shop who was asked for candied vegetables.

Dark man in Penn the Florist's who was asked for Chinese lily bulbs.

Blonde saleslgirl in Jordan Marsh Co. toy department, who could not find a tiger rickshaw.

Physician on third floor of Eldredge building who was told of aunt needing treatment for extreme nervousness.

EVEN GUARD FAILED

Gray-haired saleslady in R. H. White Co., wearing glasses and amber drop earrings, who was asked if mandarin coats had cuffs were being shown this year.

Subway guard in Park st. station asked Saturday for directions to Times sq.

Pretty girl in figured dress at employment office, fourth floor, Walk building, to whom "mysterious lady" gave the same name as that of the employment office manager and said her last stenographic job was in an Oriental rug concern in Philadelphia.

Saleslady in S. S. Pierce Co. store, Tremont st., who could not think of the name of an Oriental relish used with curry and rice.

Dark man in Oliver Ditson Co. store, Tremont st., who was asked for an Oriental piece called "Umbala Land," a piece that does not exist.

If these persons who had $100 almost in their grasp will be at the Majestic Theater tomorrow night they will see a wonderful show as compensation.

And will see a very pretty girl once again.

LYNN NEWSIES ENTERTAINED

Otis Emerson Dunham entertained the Hearst home delivery newsboys of Lynn at his famous estate at Gold Beverly.

The boys had the time of their lives riding Mr. Dunham's ponies and feeding the buffalos and deer that have been brought to the latter's North Shore ranch from Montana.

During the afternoon athletic contests were run off for the junior, intermediate and senior newsboys. The point winners were Philip Trainor, junior, and Clarence Lefkell, senior. Larkin and Lefkell and Gulesian were tied among the intermediates.

A baseball game between a team headed by Roy Frothingham and an aggregation led by Francis Murphy resulted in a victory for the former's outfit. The day's activities wound up with a visit to Mr. Dunham's mansion where the newsboys were shown a collection of Indian curios and served with ice cream. Edward E. Keevin had charge of the arrangements.

Benefit Matinee

"The Silent House," at the Majestic Theater, will be played at an extra matinee, tomorrow, for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America, under the auspices of the actor's Equity Association. The scale of prices will be the same as is charged at the midweek matinee.

FLIGHTS and FLIERS

by George W. Hamblin

Brisk business in commercial flying and increased activity for this time of year in the instruction field are keeping things humming at the airport.

An interesting note on night flying over Boston is that it was the first time that Olcott Payson ever had flown formation with two other ships. Formation flying in the daytime is tricky enough, and at night more so.

Bob Townsend, business manager of Skyways, says that despite the mixture of high winds, cold and hot weather, the company is still keeping the home fires burning.

• • •

Lieut. Adolph M. Backstrom, one of the best of the aerial instructors who was engaged by the Boston Airport Corporation last week, Backstrom says that he can turn students loose in five hours instruction on the Travel Air, which is capable of flying for 11 years, two years during the war as chief test pilot at the air parade ground at Farnborough, Hampshire, England, and the remaining years in commercial aviation in this country, Backstrom is one of the oldest in air hours pilots around New England. It is estimated that he has had 4200 hours in the air.

Capt. H. F. Billings, who for the past three years has been operations manager for the corporation will leave for his home in Wichita, Kan., Wednesday.

Billings has made a remarkable record for himself around Boston. In fact, the airport won't be the same without Benjamin Franklin Billings.

Frank D. Le Man, traffic manager for the Airport Corporation, is kept busy signing up students for the flying courses. Frank designed, along with Auggie Pabst and Mason Sears, a novel student flying log.

George H. Wakins, Tom Croce and Al Anderson went down to the Pawtucket air meet over the week-end. This seems to be the last of the season. After the abnormal business of last year, caused no doubt by the Ortaig and Lindbergh, Chamberlain, et al, the flying activity spent a very lean summer.

Emerson Carpenter, formerly with the Boston Airport Corporation, and who is now with the 1 and H Aircraft at Hartford, writes that he is putting in a lot of flying time at Brainard Field, much more than he did up here. "It's a great help to take off and not to be over the water, if the motor 'conks' on me now, I just set her down on a field. I'm afraid my title of 'The Duck' will soon have to be given to somebody else."

• • •

Al Jones, mechanic of the Bay State Flying Service, has both Bay State American Eagles flying, and Lieut. Joseph Ahern, chief pilot, seems to lean toward the Hisso engined Eagle. Joe is an army reserve flier, and has been flying behind Hissos so long that an OX-5 seems to be nothing more than a glider to him.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Questions pertaining to aviation will be answered in this department every week. Address queries to "Flights and Fliers," Boston Evening American, 8 Winthrop Sq., Boston.

Q—Where can I find employment in aviation? The salary doesn't matter so much as long as I can begin at the bottom. Also tell me what the address of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp is.

A—At this time of the year the flying business is rather slow, so the chances of finding employment are slim. Backstrom says the best time to start in this business. The Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp address is Akron, O.

Q—Is there an airport in Springfield, Mass. If so where?

A—There are three airports in Springfield: Pynk Park, two miles north; Randall Field, in Agawam, west of the river, and Dunn Field, Longmeadow, about four miles south.

FILM OF "POLS" IN PETTICOATS SCOLLAY HIT

There is nothing like these talking films to classify properly the talents of the good-looking youngsters. In "Women Are Funny They Talk About," at the Scollay, it is Irene Rich, Claude Gillingwater and Florence Roudolph, who put the juveniles, Jerry Perrin and "Buster" Collier, in the shade. In fact, the latter pair are not entrusted with talking at all; the film is nearly purely conversational. Although Miss Rich is seen to charmingly adept for this sort of thing, it is Claude Gillingwater who fares best in the dialogue. Rudolph, apparently, is forced by the nature of the story merely to shout his head off. This business of bellowing cannot possibly do the talking films any good.

Irene Rich

For plot, "Women They Talk About" is concerned with "petticoat politics." The "petticoat" question is worn by Miss Rich who finds herself in the novel position of entering the game to spite her ex-husband, the mayor.

The youngsters are worked into it in a manner that may be explained, namely, the mayor's son must fall in love with the lady candidate's pretty daughter.

The action moves somewhat somedy and stern drama. It is best when concerned with comedy; poorest, on account of the preposterous lines, when the characters speak.

No question about it, the "talkers" are going to get on. The audience seems to like to hear as well as see its favorites, and it is willing to put up with a great deal with them in this matter of absurd dialogue.

On stage at the Scollay, The Hollywood Redheads with other turns and some Vitaphone specialties.

SOPRANO HEARD IN SONG RECITAL

Abbie Mitchell, soprano, gave a concert at Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon. Her program included groups of German, French and Russian songs, three numbers by Cook of negro spirituals, arranged by Cook, Hall Johnson, and Burleigh.

Miss Mitchell was accompanied at the piano by C. Beatrice Lewis and small audience showed its appreciation.

"Your Hair"
Unless the necessary elements are present in the blood stream that flows to the scalp, the use of hair tonics can not grow your hair, can not even preserve it. The organization of the hair is carbon sulphur, calcium, magnesium, iron, stamina and silica. If these substances are absent or deficient in one's system, your hair will not be good, even growing hair. Failing hair is caused by the deficiency of these necessary elements not reaching the hair-bods in the tissue scalp.

Too Many Potatoes

Too Many, That Is to Say, to Please the GROWER—Lucky If He "Breaks Even"

When an Oxford County farmer drove into Bethel, Maine, a day or two ago, and found that potatoes were selling at 45 cents a bushel, he returned home to Rumford Point and killed himself. In addition to a big field at home he was the owner of a large acreage of potatoes in Bethel.

This incident, with others less tragic, has served to call attention to the fact that whereas the nation's consumption of potatoes amounts to not more than 400,000,000 bushels annually—some place it much lower—the Government crop reports have forecast a crop of 467,000,000 bushels.

In Aroostook County, 200 miles across the State from Rumford, potatoes of the best table variety have been selling recently for $1 a barrel. SEED potatoes, which will be shipped South early in the year, bring more than twice as much.

The best the State of Maine potato man can hope for this year, we are told, will be an "even break." This is the day on which the last of the crop should be dug and stored. A heavy frost or an early snow, not unlikely in Aroostook any time after the middle of October, may take away his last chance of profit.

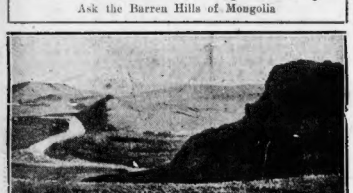
The potato market this year is a "buyer's" market. Make the best of it and while doing so give a thought to the grower and his hard work and resolve not to grumble too much when, some other year, the crop falls BELOW the annual consumption.

One thing more. The Aroostook potatoes you buy this year will be Aroostook's best. Commission men and other buyers are insisting upon quality. When prices are high, everything goes; but this year potatoes that come to the storehouses bearing signs of rust or rot are sent back to the grower to be disposed of at the starch factories.

This, in the opinion of the intelligent farmer, is wisdom, "good business." If Aroostook in a big year sends only her best to market, Aroostook's net price will be better than the average.

Where Is All Thy Glory?

Ask the Barren Hills of Mongolia



HERE MIGHTY RULERS AND GREAT TREASURES LIE BURIED

"I am Osymandyas, King of Kings, look upon my works, ye mighty ones and tremble."

Thus the proud king of the East boasted, and all that was left of his mighty "works" was a fragment of his statue and a dreary sweep of sand.

It was such a scene as that in this picture, a photograph of dreary, desolate hills in inner Mongolia, which few white men have seen.

In these hills lie buried the bodies of mighty rulers of Mongolia in ages past.

Each of those rulers, now forgotten, thought that his name would live and that his body would rise to be a great ruler, SUBJECT TO THE GREATEST RULER, in a heaven of his own kind. The bodies were carefully buried away, in stony hills or deep woods—there to be forgotten.

When the greatest of all rulers of the East, Genghis Khan, was buried, his fierce warriors carried the body night and day far off to a dense wood in the hills of Northern Mongolia. On the way they killed every man, woman and child they met, that no one might know of the great Khan or its direction.

Many that would not care for ruins of empires or graves of Mongolian rulers, will be interested in the fact that treasures of gold and precious stones are perhaps buried with some of those bodies of ancient rulers in desolate Mongolian plains, hills and northern forests.

Many cities were once built by Tartars, Mongolians and conquerors of various kinds, in the lands now swept by wind, covered with sand, now lonely hunting grounds in which modern science digs up dinosaur eggs, huge, extinct monsters, and in which recently, the learned Russian, Professor Kosloff, traveling in Tibetan Mongolia, discovered and explored the ancient City of Khara-Khoto.

The modern mind says, "Let me into Mongolia, and when I dig it will be NOT for dinosaur eggs, but for the gold buried by those old rulers."

The philosophical, non-modern mind looks at this scene and says, "Let me do something while I live worth while, something that will be of use to other human beings, so that whether I am REMEMBERED or FORGOTTEN, I shall not have lived in vain."

Professor Kosloff, who found the dead city in the heart of the Gobi Desert, is in no way interested in treasure, except scientific and archeological treasure.

He explored ancient towers, found thousands of scrolls, books and manuscripts, and 300 Chinese pictures illustrating the religious ideas of the Buddhists.

Those Chinese Buddhist pictures, by the way, might dis-

SPIRIT OF PEOPLE GREAT DEFENSE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PREPAREDNESS is a thing that everybody wants. Every nation should be prepared to defend itself. Nobody will dispute this, any more than nobody will dispute the fact that the Eighteenth Amendment should be enforced so long as it is a law.

They staged a sham battle in London the other day between hundreds of bombers and fast pursuit planes, attacking and defending. The result was that it was plainly proved to the British that no matter how efficient Great Britain's defending force may be it cannot stop every bomber which a determined Continental enemy might send over the capital. Some assailants are bound to get through.

In this sham battle the air ministry was theoretically destroyed twice. The Duke of York headquarters at Chelsea were wiped out. Winston Churchill's country home was laid flat.

The Manchester Guardian says that the lesson of the whole affair is one for disarmament, since no European capital can prevent raiders of another country from destroying it in war.

The fact is that the best defense in the country, the best guarantee of its peace, is not its army and navy, but the spirit of its people.

You are safe in New York because nobody especially wants to kill you.

If New York was composed entirely of criminals, all with lust, murder and mayhem unbridled in their hearts, the city would be in ashes before the end of a week. All of our policemen, soldiers and sailors could not prevent it.

It seems a long process to so develop the spirit of law that it shall render the country safe, and the short cut of fear and force is appealing, but facts are facts.

The best preventive of war is to create a public opinion that desires peace. The imaginations of men's hearts must be trained. So long as men want war and eagerly anticipate deeds of violence war will always remain as a possibility.

When men like Obregon are assassinated the minds of the people must be changed. Humanity cannot be permanently controlled by force.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Here's one for them to answer. Is it a real letter? It is. Red hot from the griddle via this morning's mail.

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I want to know what you think of a supposed-to-be-modern American husband who refuses to let his wife have the freedom of her vote? The coming presidential election is about to split up our party sure enough. My husband says (and in all earnestness, no foolin') that he positively will not allow me to go to the polls and vote unless I vote the way he wants me to—that he will not allow me to kill his vote.

Last week he emphatically told an old college chum of mine that if I vote for the man I am planning to vote for he will turn me out of the house and have nothing more to do with me. While I do not think he would go to such extremes I do know that he will make it extremely unpleasant for me. He even says that unless I change my mind and promise to vote his way, he will lock me up. How is that for a modern husband to talk? And he really means it more or less. He will do everything else in his power first and if that fails I wouldn't be surprised if he did try the lock and key stunt.

Of course, I could go over to his side because my little vote probably won't mean much, but that's not the thing. I would be giving up my rights as an individual if I did not do what I think is right, regardless. I have never tried to win him over to my side. I have always respected his right to an opinion of his own. Therefore, I think he ought to give me the same right without any argument. The whole quarrel seems so absurd to me, especially since I am a business woman and hold down a job of my own.

A. L.

That's a big letter. It involves much more than one little lady's vote for Al or Herb. It involves the whole business of human right, in and out of marriage.

Has A. L. a right to vote?

Sure she has. But she's got to make the other fellow recognize the right before it will do her much good. And that applies to every human relationship.

HAVING A RIGHT IS ONE THING—PUTTING IT ACROSS IS QUITE ANOTHER.

Governments may grant political equality, marriage may theoretically guarantee consideration and protection. But when it comes right down to brass tacks, we win our own rights daily. And if we don't win them, nobody hands them to us on a silver platter.

Does that seem a hard law? It isn't. It's a healthy law—it's the only law which makes growth and progress possible.

Each one of us must do his own growing and protect his own interest—unless he's an infant or a moron. No one else can make your life for you—no one else can set you free or keep you happy. Your liberty, your progress and your happiness are YOUR business and you needn't blame anyone else if you fall down on the job. And that rule works alike for every living thing, be it potato, pollywog or pear.

So grab your vote and do your stuff, little lady. And here's one battle scarred veteran who's wishing you luck.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Charms strike the sight, but merit wins the soul. —Pope.

Each man has his own desires; all do not possess the same inclinations. —Persius.

Proverbs, like the sacred books of each nation, are the sanctuary of the intuitions. —Emerson.

Better the rudest work that tells a story or records a fact than the richest without meaning. There should not be a single ornament put upon great civic buildings, without some intellectual intention. —Ruskin.

Time, the great destroyer of other men's happiness, only enlarges the patrimony of literature to its possessor.—Disraeli.

Men of age object too much, consult too long, adventure too little, repent too soon, and seldom drive business home to the full period, but content themselves with mediocrity of success. —Bacon.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Diary of a modern Peppy: Up and came a delayed postal from Homer Croy in Lima, Peru, that he had been investigating the Lima bean situation and although the natives never heard of them seemed happy withal. Also a letter from Billy De Beck the funnee, who has fallen in love with Paris and will winter at St. Jean d'Luz.

So at irksome tasks and later to drive with a friend to Prospect Park in Brooklyn and there afoot for a pleasant walk, it being my favorite park in all the city. Home where came Archie Andrews and Ted Dorgnus and much rag, tag and bobtail.

In the evening to dinner with Charles B. Driscoll, the gazetteer, at a Greek restaurant on 14th st., and we prowled about Greenwich Village, finding a short, narrow thoroughfare called Gay st., as peaceful as ever we saw. Then to bed.

THE roof bungalow craze flourishes. Almost every new skyscraper has a house with spreading lawn, arbors, little streams with foot bridges high up in the clouds. The fashionable pent house has become the most exclusive of all ways of living in the metropolis. It has its private elevator and is away from prying eyes of neighbors. A few of them, it is whispered, have become tasty hide-aways for creps de chine ladies who are linked in the tabloids with those heartless Wall st. men.

TATTOO removers are not confined entirely to streets haunted by seamen along water fronts. There is now one on 42nd st. The charge for removal is $5 a square inch.

TATTOOING is found on people not supposed to resort to this particular vanity. At a bathing beach recently a college professor with a superior classroom manner exposed an arm with a bleeding heart tattooed thereon. It was a relict of a runaway sea trip in early youth.

YOUTH is getting on in the book publishing business. Four new and highly successful publishers are under 25.

IT has been observed that great publishing houses reach a stage of dry rot. Until late years few readers in publishing houses, who passed upon the merits of books were under 60. Then the business was infused with the enthusiasm of youth and more books are sold now than ever. Six books a year used to be an average for publishers. One firm this year published 142.

ENTHUSIASM, incidentally, receives this trade last from a highly successful New Yorker: "Give me 20 per cent enthusiasm and 80 per cent ability and I'll make any business you name pay high dividends."

A NEW YORK jeweler is displaying a diamond studded handbag designed for a beautiful chorus lady whose boy friend doesn't care what he does with papa's money. It cost him $26,000. Before pricing it I had thought of ordering one for my wife and have been blushing for three days straight.

AND the same jeweler has a pearl necklace which has been sold for $685,000. The largest pearl is valued at $125,000. The purchaser is a one-galloused Middle West fellow on the right side of a motor stock rise. The story goes his wife tried to persuade him to keep out of Wall Street and to placate her he promised if he won she could select any necklace she might choose. The $685,000 necklace was her choice. The income represented by such an investment is $2000 a week, which seems to some of us an awful price for upkeep of something so easily duplicated in paste only experts can distinguish.

"I AM retiring from active work," announces a New York merchant, "to go to the south of France and write."

Louder!

Also a lot funnier, you big stiff!

Where Is All Thy Glory?

turb some fundamentalist, if he lacked common sense ideas.

For those paintings, much older than Christianity, show scenes that might be considered a satire on Christianity.

Sitting in the clouds, with the figure of a Buddhist monk on each side of him, you see the ruler of the universe, Buddhist monks ministering to him and interpreting his will. And in a corner of the picture frequently appears the figure of a pious Buddhist layman, censor in hand.

Such pictures, in the Buddhist teachings, amazed and considerably disturbed pious missionaries from Rome that went into Tibet and other parts of Asia centuries ago.

They found there a religion that had millions of followers long before the beginning of Christianity, and that religion seemed like an imitation or a parody of Christianity.

It included miraculous birth, atonement, religious beliefs that foreshadowed the Christian church that came afterward.

To put at rest the minds of the pious, it was explained that the devil, knowing, of course, what Christianity was to be, started that other religion first, with features imitating Christianity, in order to make the Christian religion ridiculous. Missionaries that had seen the things, and had written about them, were forbidden to publish their books, and that settled that.

And now the sands cover them, as the sands of time cover ancient superstitions, cover graves of the old Mongolian rulers, and will some day cover us ALL—our great cities, skyscrapers, Presidential candidates, moving pictures. And all the rest of that which we consider so important. All is, in reality, but the momentary shifting of sands in the kaleidoscope of time.
